17 Trapped Miners . . . 'They Died That Fast'

SYLMAR, Calif. (UPI)—Crews of rescue workers, their faces drawn with exhaustion, groped in the darkness of an extremely heavy smoke today to recover the last bodies of 17 miners killed in a gas explosion deep in a water tunnel. "They had no time to live," said fire department rescue workers Andy Kuljis. "They died—he snapped his fingers—that fast. You take a lung full of hot air and you're dead before your brain knows it." Only one man in the drilling crew, 250 feet beneath the surface, survived the inferno of blazing gases or the suffocating smoke that followed Thursday's blast. Three five-man crews buried the bodies of the miners, who were wearing gas masks and heavy oxygen tanks repeatedly went down into the tunnel in hourly cycles through a gaping air shaft two miles from the entrance portal. The work was extremely hazardous because of the "zero visibility" of the smoke and accumulation of unburned methane gas. Officials blamed the faults for the seepage of natural gas.

Nixon Holds Out Hope To Oldsters of Nation

CHICAGO (AP) — President Nixon, calling for a new attitude toward old age in America, said today a generation gap between older citizens and all others "has often been ignored or slighted."

In an address prepared for a joint convention of the National

Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, Nixon said there is need for "a new alliance in this country between Americans who are under 65 and those who are older."

The President, who flew here Thursday night after making a sentimental journey to Indiana and the home soil of his late mother, said:

"If we allow our society to become fragmented—so that younger Americans are cut off from older Americans—then each member of our society will also become fragmented—dumping grounds for the dying."

The President said it was his goal to see federal, state and local governments working with the private sector "to transform the nursing homes—for those who need it—into an inspiring symbol of comfort and hope."

The chief executive found a way, too, to appeal to older Americans to support his embattled revenue-sharing program—the centerpiece of his 1971 legislative program.

He declared that sharing federal revenues with the state and local governments "could help stem the ruinous rise in local property taxes," and thus help those over 65.

"When a person retires, his income goes down—and so do most of his tax bills. But his property taxes keep right on climbing—and he may even be forced out of the home he has paid for," he said.

"We must build in this country . . . an attitude which insists that there can be no retirement from living, no retirement from responsibility and no retirement from citizenship," the President said.

Nixon journeyed to Vernon, Ind. Thursday to help dedicate a road marker that will be placed near the birthplace of his mother, Hannah Milhous Nixon. She left the area in 1897 when she was 12 and, with her parents, headed for California.

The president then made an unscheduled 70-plus mile drive from Vernon to Indianapolis—he was supposed to go by helicopter—and stopped along the way to have roadside chats with the staff of a suburban Indianapolis daily newspaper and residents of a Presbyterian housing development for the elderly.

In the evening, just before flying to Chicago, Nixon spoke briefly at a testimonial dinner in Indianapolis for Frederick L. Hovde, retiring after 25 years as president of Purdue University.

Man Slain by Police, Seek Link to President

CHICAGO (UPI)—Secret Service agents are trying to determine whether a man slain Thursday evening in a shootout with police may have come to Chicago in an attempt to assassinate President Nixon.

James E. Beavers, 47, Squire, W. Va., said to be a critic of President Nixon's Southeast Asia policy, was slain by police in the Grant Park area about three hours before the President was to arrive at Meigs Field, about a mile from the scene of the shootout, Beavers was carrying two .32 caliber revolvers when he was killed, Beavers' sister, Mrs. Walter Chambers of Squire, W. Va., said her brother was known to be violent and had indicated he opposed Nixon's policies.

Mrs. Chambers said her brother had once phoned the White House over some matter and that he was distraught by the fact that he was unable to reach the President.

She said her brother left West Virginia Monday morning and that she thought he had mentioned something about going to either Florida or California.

Nixon has homes in Key Biscayne, Fla., and San Clemente, Calif.

Mrs. Chambers said her brother had a history of mental illness since World War II and that he had been confined to a West Virginia mental hospital after being tried for the murder of her first husband, Ely Herley, in 1950.

He was also arrested on a weapons charge in Bluefield, W. Va., a month ago, she said.

She said he was always talking of buying guns and killing people.

"He told my husband he was going to buy three guns this time, though we never believed him," she said.

She described his mental condition as unstable and said he was a relatively heavy drinker and was known to become violent when drinking.

"He acted worse this time than he ever did before," Mrs. Chambers said, noting that her brother had been in the hospital several times.

Beavers was shot and killed in a foot chase with police Thursday after a woman spotted him setting a revolver down on a salt box in the park and notified police.

After Beavers was surrounded by police, he challenged them to take away his gun, then began to walk away. He turned suddenly and fired, hitting one patrolman in the thumb.

Other officers fired several shots, fatally wounding Beavers.

Authorities said the Secret Service had found several suspicious aspects in the case which might indicate that Beavers had planned an attempt on the President's life. However, authorities said, the two incidents could be unrelated.

Street Rebuilding Figure at $105,000

By HUGH REYNOLDS KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced the city's 1971 street program today, funded at a total of $105,000.

While the program remains at the level of recent years, Koenig said today that the traditional hiring of additional summer help "would be avoided" this year due to budgetary cutbacks because of revenue loss from the state.

Part of the program has already been completed, a section of Pearl Street near Overlook Drive and portions of Wells Lane near Orchard Street, Pine Grove Avenue and Wilbur Avenue. The Pearl Street work is extensive, involving the construction of a new base for the street.

Streets to be paved include Cordts Street, Hooker Street, Colfax Place, York Place, the Stickles Avenue, Elmendorf Street from Bruyn Avenue to Foxhall Avenue, Washington Avenue from Lucas Avenue to Main Street and Delaware Avenue from North Street to the end of Delaware. In addition the city will repair guard rails at the deadend of Pierpont Street. A total of $81,000 has been budgeted to date for the program, which is now underway.

Specifications are being drawn up for a retaining wall on Spruce Street and for the reconstruction of St. James Street from Clinton Avenue to Broadway.

The crown on St. James will be lowered, curbing will be repaired and the drainage problem corrected.

The street program, once the sole responsibility of the Common Council, is now under the mayor's direction. The aldermen submit their street requests on a priority basis to the city's chief executive, who in cooperation with the Board of Public Works, draws up a street program within the advance-budgeted amount.

Mayor Koenig also announced that street repairs at Broadway and East Chester Street would soon be completed. A water main broke there last year, the mayor said, but the backfilling was insufficient. Pockets formed under the street which are now being refilled and compacted.

Considering Cases in Closing Days of Session

Supreme Court Weighs 'War Papers'

By United Press International The Supreme Court in the closing days of its current session considered today appeals from the federal government and The New York Times over publication of a secret Pentagon report on the Vietnam War.

Unless the court takes some action, The Washington Post will be permitted to resume publication of the documents at 6 p.m. today. The court was expected to review the cases because of the issues involved—freedom of the press and national security—and the conflicting lower court rulings in separate Times and Post cases.

The Times, which started the controversy by printing excerpts from the report June 13, appealed to the high court, claiming an appeals court put undue restraints on it. The appeals court ordered a federal district court judge to decide what portions of the report the Times could print.

The Times could, according to the appeals court ruling, resume publication at 5 p.m. EDT today of the parts of the report not considered classified. The current Supreme Court session is expected to end Monday.

The federal government asked the Supreme Court to study the case against the Post after the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington in a 7-2 decision refused Thursday to reconsider the case.

The appeals court originally upheld a district judge's decision that the Post could publish the report because it did not damage national security. The government, in its brief filed Thursday, said publication was harmful and if the Post was allowed to resume today it would make the government's case against the Times moot.

At the same time, a federal grand jury in Los Angeles was investigating how the Times got the report. A friend of Daniel Ellsberg, a former Defense Department aide mentioned as the possible leak to the Times, told the grand jury Thursday she copied a document for him.

The Chicago Tribune, admitting "we may be vulnerable to a charge of sour grapes," suggested in a front page editorial today that a group of editors and government officials study the secret report, decide what could be published and distribute the material to all the news media. The Tribune said it did not have copies of the report.

"We suggest that the whole matter of further publication be held in abeyance until the entire record is studied by an impartial group of editors and government officials skilled in sorting out the perils that indiscriminate publication of classified documents would entail," it said.

A district court hearing on the case of the Boston Globe, the third newspaper enjoined from publishing the Pentagon report, had been scheduled for today but was postponed until Tuesday. District Judge Anthony J. Julian gave no reason for the rescheduling.

The Los Angeles Times, the Chicago Sun-Times and the 11-member Knight Newspapers Inc. chain also have printed stories based on the Pentagon report but have not been enjoined from publishing them.

Mones to Introduce Burning Ban Resolution

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
The state ban on open burning, which was quietly repealed this year with little fanfare, has fast become an increasing problem for Ulster County.

Complaints of burning lately have been coming into the County Health Department lately and County Legislator Melvin Mones (R-City), chairman of the Public Health Committee, said that the county is now powerless to do anything about it.

He therefore will introduce a local law which would ban burning county wide — unless property owners secure a permit from the County Health Department.

Under the present state law, residents may burn anything they wish with the exception of garbage.

Mones said that among the complaints received locally were some with regard to the recent week-long burning of trees and branches at one of the construction sites for a new shopping plaza in the Town of Ulster.

Another complaint concerns the day long, seemingly purposeful daily burning at a residence adjoining a trailer park. Other complaints have come in from Esopus where a one-time burning incident was the subject of criticism.

But, Mones said, a one-time situation like that could occur all over the county if preventative measures are not taken.

He suggests that the new county law take the form of a local law rather than a resolution in order that a public hearing might be held.

Mones encourages all conservation and anti-pollution groups to support the proposed ban in the county.

He said he will file a resolution calling for passage of a local law before the next special meeting of the County Legislature, Wednesday, June 30 at 8 p.m. in the County Office Building.

Also under consideration at the special meeting will be a number of resolutions, all dealing with county finances.

One authorizes the chairman of the Legislature to enter into an agreement modifying the existing prime contracts for the construction of the new Ulster County Infirmary in order that the contractor will be paid monthly, 90 per cent of the proportion of the contract sum allowable to materials and equipment, less the previous payments until 50 per cent of the work under the contract is complete. No percentage would be withheld on the second 50 per cent of the work.

Another resolution provides for the consolidation and sale into one issue of serial bonds amounting to $2,370,000, bonds authorized previously and separately for various public purposes.

A third resolution authorizes the issuance of $907,000 in serial bonds and $48,000 in capital notes of the county in addition to $2,375,000 in serial bonds and $125,000 in capital notes previously authorized for the construction and equipment for the new county jail. The move is contemplated in order that the county pay the cost of the construction of the new jail.

Awarding of the contracts for the construction of the new jail will also come up for a vote. Low bidders are as follows: site work, Rock Construction Corp., Kingston, $335,432.50; general construction, Eugene Ossie, Highland, $1,349,724; plumbing, Bank Bros. Plumbing and Heating, Accord, $219,400; heating and ventilating, Tougher Heating and Plumbing, Albany, $187,900; electrical, Thomas O'Leary Electrical Co., Kingston, $327,000; security equipment, Southern Steel Co., San Antonio, Tex.

The county will also be asked to approve payment of $400 for an appraisal of property adjoining Ulster County Community College for the purpose of 50 per cent state reimbursement for the parcel purchased by the county. The board will also vote on the suspension of additional mortgage tax.

Close Call for Poughkeepsie Man

William Ofca Jr., of Poughkeepsie, an employee of DeLaval Separator Co., in that Dutchess County city, escaped injury Thursday when fire broke out on the Roger Blough, an 838-foot U.S. Steel Corp. ore carrier docked near Lorain, Ohio. Ofca was installing an oil purifier below decks and went ashore to find a tool he needed for the job when what is believed to be an explosion started the fire. The 45,000-ton Blough is the largest vessel ever built on the Great Lakes and was preparing for sea trials July 2. There were reports of five injuries due to the blaze. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

BOCES Details Some Plans

By JEAN F. DOLAN

NEW PALTZ
Building plans and student summer projects were detailed at a brief meeting of the Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services board meeting Thursday night.

Dr. Jack Roosa, BOCES executive officer, reported that initial building plans on the proposed 50-acre site in Bloomington are progressing "slowly and satisfactorily."

The architect, Mowry Associates of Binghamton, is drawing up preliminary plans for the building which will house vocational education and special education facilities, incorporating the space requirements recently approved by the State Education Department. It is expected that cost estimates may be drawn by next month.

Site evaluation work continues to be satisfactory with both soil and water reports excellent.

Board members approved a work study printing project for the summer. Paul Fitzpatrick, printing instructor, and four students will be involved in printing of brochures for the State Department of Labor and the Mid-Hudson Career Development Association. In addition to the on-the-job experience, students will be paid for their summer employment. Work will be done at the Kingston Vocational Center. Brochures are a part of a joint Labor Department and Career Development Association project on occupations and career opportunities in various fields.

Permanent appointments of two typists were approved. Named to the posts were Beatrice Havrenek and Winifred Toman. Also appointed were Judy Wendel as a special education teacher and Jane Campbell as part-time employee at the vocational center.

The annual reorganizational meeting of Ulster BOCES board will be held Thursday, July 1, at the New Paltz Center. Officers will be elected in addition to other organizational details for the coming year.

Ulster Town Senior Citizens Continue Apartment Survey

LAKE KATRINE
Town of Ulster Senior Citizens Inc., is continuing its survey to determine how many are interested in the proposed 200-unit senior citizens apartment on Neighborhood Road, expected to cost $5 million.

Application forms are available at the town clerk's office at Lake Katrine Grange Hall, Leggs Mills Road and from Russell F. Brott, Senior Citizens advisor. The completed applications should be mailed by July 1 to Brott, RD 6, Box 393, Kingston, 12401. Application forms are also available at the Town of Ulster Library. All senior citizens over the age of 60 may file applications.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino, who previously announced the plans, said the project is awaiting preliminary approval of the Federal Housing Authority. The structure proposed for a 10-acre site on Neighborhood Road will consist of a two-story brick-veneered building with efficiency and one-room apartments and two-room apartments with kitchen, living room-bedroom. The site is within walking distance of Lake Katrine Post Office and general store.

Rentals will be based on income and a subsidy will make up the difference required to provide proper maintenance and operation of the building.

The Senior Citizens Advisory Board, in addition to Brott, includes Bernie Singer, Kenneth Millham, the Rev. Robert C. Miller of Grace Community Church; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. James McNally of St. Catherine Laboure and Joseph Lohmaier, chairman of the town's Board of Assessors.

Supreme Court Judgeship ... Ulster GOP Favors Upstater

KINGSTON
Ulster County Republican delegates to the Third Judicial Convention will probably go along with Albany County GOP's apparent choice for a Supreme Court judgeship, Harold J. Hughes Jr., Gunderland Town councilman and deputy clerk to the State Appellate Division.

Ulster County was fortunate last year in having Kingston attorney John L. Larkin selected for the Supreme Court bench and therefore the GOP here would stand little chance of having another successful candidate at such an early date. There are seven counties in the district competing for the designation. In addition to Albany and Ulster counties, there is Rensselaer, Schoharie, Greene, Columbia and Sullivan.

The race for the seat, being vacated by Justice Russell G. Hunt of Albany has prompted Republicans and Democrats alike to lean toward an Albany candidate however, Columbia and Sullivan counties are reportedly interested too. Sullivan county was in close competition with Ulster in 1970 and only GOP intra-party battling prevented Sullivan from being victorious.

Democrats reportedly favor Albany County attorney John J. Clyne, who is well known in Ulster County and who is seeking the support of the Conservative Party here.

The Conservatives played a large part in the 1970 race when Larkin defeated Rensselaer County Judge Timothy Fogarty by 20,736 votes, 16,490 of which were on the Conservative Party line. About 290,000 ballots were cast.

Whether Clyne or Hughes will get the support of Ulster Conservatives is open to question in that the Conservative County Chairman Harry Hoffman feels the judgeships should be spread evenly over the district and favors a candidate from either Sullivan or Columbia County which has no resident justice.

To date however, there have been no commitments from any of the three parties locally.

Republican County Chairman Albert Spada told The Freeman

this week that he has not met with the delegates yet but planned to very soon. The GOP delegates were selected at the party's recent unofficial convention and include: Robert MacKinnon, Stewart Schantz, Abram Molyneux, Howard St. John, Charles F. Kaiser, N. LeVan Haver, Francis X. Tucker, Harold Gold, Michael Catlinotto and Richard Grigas.

Democrats will select their delegates at a July 12 unofficial convention and the Conservatives meet next Tuesday at the Esopus Town Hall.

When it comes to the final decision at the district level, Republicans are generally favored although the Conservative endorsement could effect the outcome.

Albany County has the edge with the biggest block of votes and needs only the support of one or two other counties for victory.

Woodstock, Paltz Citations For Possession of Marijuana

WOODSTOCK
A 17-year-old youth was arrested at 7:10 p.m. Thursday by police here on a charge of criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree—marijuana—and two other teenagers were booked for loitering at the same time.

Another arrest involving marijuana was reported by Highland State Police.

Woodstock Patrolman Charles Wolven cited Stephen Houska, 17, of Mt. Tremper, on a charge of possessing marijuana. Wolven also arrested Ross Rogers, 17, of Shandaken and James Manganaro, 16, of Woodstock, on charges of loitering.

The three were taken before Town Justice Walter VanWagenen. They pleaded innocent and were released in custody of Attorney Joshua N. Koplovitz pending a hearing at a later date.

Woodstock Police also reported the arrest of Michael Cinsitski of New York City on a charge of violating a town ordinance. The man was accused of sleeping in a parked vehicle on a town street. Cinsitski pleaded guilty before Justice VanWagenen and paid a fine of $10.

A routine check by Highland State Police Thursday night resulted in the arrest of a Brooklyn teenager on a charge of criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree.

Six Are Arrested For Heroin Haul

NEW YORK (UPI)—Six persons, five of them French citizens, were indicted in U.S. District Court Thursday on charges of attempting to smuggle 703 pounds of heroin into the United States.

The indictment said three separate shipments were made each of them hidden in a French-made Citroen automobile. One shipment was seized in New York, another in San Juan, P.R., and the third in Valencia, Spain.

They totaled 703 pounds and authorities said the heroin would be worth as much as $91 million on the illicit market.

Antonio Segura, 27, Bronx, N.Y.; Edmond Taillet, 38, Paris, France; Jean Joseph Tonarelli, 37, and Andre Joset Gayraud, 36, both city employees in Manosque, France; and Jean Pierre Pilato, 35, and Maria Ivanne Carretero, 23, both of Orange, France.

Taillet allegedly delivered a Citroen automobile containing 206 pounds of heroin to Segura in New York City April 12, 1971, and was paid $981,750.

The indictment also charged a conspiracy to smuggle two other shipments of heroin concealed in Citroens.

The arrest was made on Route 32 in New Paltz.

Bell on State Budget . . . Tight for Next 18 Months

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON — "New York State is going to have to continue to live on a tight budget for 12 to 18 months," Assemblyman H. Clark Bell predicted Thursday in an address before the luncheon meeting of Kingston Kiwanis in the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Bell said he felt "we are going to continue to experience a difficult time and perhaps more cutbacks in the state labor force unless federal revenue sharing becomes available or the federal government takes over the welfare system."

Reviewing the latest and historic session of the State Legislature, Bell called it a hectic, long and bitter session.

He described the tremendous cleavage between upstate and downstate, between black and white, saying that debate got so heated at times that there was actual physical violence with one legislator grabbing another by the scuff of the neck and still another challenging a fellow lawmaker to a duel.

"When money is short, tempers get short," Bell commented, explaining that the governor's budget was turned back in huge proportion because, "we can no longer raise revenue to expand at the rate we have been expanding."

He described the effect high taxes are having on the businessmen of the state saying that 50,000 manufacturing jobs have been lost in the past 10 years as a result. Bell told of a Syracuse industry with a $63 million payroll declaring that it would not expand its facility any further because of the taxes and would carry on such expansion at another of its plants in Kentucky.

"If we continue to raise taxes we will be cutting our own throat," Bell suggested.

On the other hand he pointed out the need for money for such things as pollution, narcotics control, education and welfare.

Asked what attributes New York State has to induce industry to stay here, the assemblyman pointed to the superior education offered, recreation, good roads, social services.

Then he told of a Xerox executive residing here who admitted he preferred New York State for those very reasons, but, planned to return to his home state after his children graduated from school "so he could begin to save some money."

Critical of New York City's Mayor John Lindsay, Bell said

the Legislature spent six to seven weeks on the city budget package and found "an amazing lack of credibility between the city and the state." The assemblyman quoted City Comptroller Abraham Beame as accusing Lindsay of fudging financial figures to the tune of $600 million.

Bell said it was very difficult to work with Lindsay whom he said wouldn't cooperate and wouldn't open his books. He also told of the mayor's having hired 90,000 new employees in the city since he took office, 35,000 of which are not under civil service and could therefore be considered in patronage positions.

Reviewing various pieces of legislation among the 1,500 bills passed this year, the Woodstock Assemblyman told of welfare reform bills he sponsored which met with approval. One calls for identification cards for welfare recipients in order to avoid double issues of checks and the other calls for social security numbers being listed on birth certificates. Bell said that since some of the reform measures have been put into effect such as employing the employable, there has been a decrease in welfare cases in some areas. He told of Binghamton where there was a reported 54 per cent drop in applications in one month, and he said that New York City, which usually adds between 10,000 and 15,000 each month, had a decrease of 300 in May.

Bell said he was pleased that the Blood Bank protection bill which he sponsored was passed, and that $900,000 for Phase II of Wittenburg Park had been secured. He mentioned his and Senator Jay P. Rolison's successful fight to keep the Campus School in New Paltz from being abolished, adding that it meant a saving of about a half million to New Paltz taxpayers.

Rockefeller Approves Lulu Increase...

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller approved without comment today a $2,000 boost in the expense allowances for state legislators, thus bringing the compensation to rank-and-file lawmakers up to $20,000 a year.

The $2,000 increase in lulu — so-called because it is a lump-sum payment in lieu of an itemized expense statement — was voted by the lawmakers in the closing days of the legislative session.

The action provoked much public protest, particularly since the lawmakers had cut welfare payments earlier in the year and forced the layoffs of thousands of state employees through reductions in the state budget.

Lawmakers had been paid a $3,000 lulu on top of the basic $15,000 salary. The salary was untouched but the lulu was increased to $5,000. Legislative leaders get extra — ranging from $3,500 for ranking minority members of committees up to $21,000 for the Senate majority leader and the Assembly speaker. All payments are considered income for tax and pension purposes.

Altogether, the cost of paying the 57 senators and 150 assemblymen—including the increased lulu and additional compensation for leaders—will be $1,000 under $5 million for the year.

In action on other bills today, Rockefeller vetoed bills that would have allowed high school athletes to participate in up to three post-season athletic contests and empowered school officials to establish standards of dress and appearance for students.

The governor signed bills Thursday that will:

- Create a special commission to study the Catskill Mountain region.
- Provide for a uniform,

statewide code governing factory-manufactured housing.

- Bar discrimination in private employment against persons who observe the Sabbath on other than a Sunday.
- Permit law school graduates awaiting results of bar examinations to assist district attorneys.
- Increase from $100 to $300 the amounts paid by counties who send students to other counties with community colleges. The county with a community college receives this amount for each out-of-county student.

- Authorize the State Transportation Department to contract with the national railroad corporation AMTRAK to restore or maintain passenger trains. Sponsors hope that the legislation will permit the continuation of service west of Buffalo, and north from Albany to Montreal.

... Vetoes Bill for Dress Standards in Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller announced today his veto of a bill that would have empowered local school boards to establish standards of dress and appearance for their students.

Rockefeller said in a veto message that the State Education Department had advised him that the legislation was unnecessary in view of existing law.

"Enactment now of legislation which makes no change in the substantive rules enunciated by the commissioner (of education) will certainly create confusion and may well reopen the whole student dress controversy," the department told the governor.

The reference was to a controversial ruling by Education Commissioner Ewald B. Nyquist in 1969 that gave public long hair and clothing that was not dangerous, indecent or unduly distracting.

The legislation that Rockefeller rejected was sponsored by Republican Assemblyman Joseph M. Margiotta of Unadilla, Long Island.

Margiotta complained during the 1971 session that local school officials feel frustrated when they seek to impose codes of dress and appearance. The bill he sponsored was aimed at assuring these officials that they could set standard.

"The regulation of school dress of students by school authorities is important incident to maintaining a code of conduct and behavior within a school system which will result in orderly conduct on the part of the student body," Margiotta said.

House Committee to Decide on Contempt Citation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A public relations. House committee is expected to decide next week whether to seek a contempt of Congress citation against CBS President Frank Stanton for refusing to surrender film used in making a documentary on Pentagon techniques.

The subcommittee says it needs the film, of which only small portions appeared in "The Selling of the Pentagon," to determine whether CBS used misleading filming and editing techniques.

During a four-hour appearance Thursday, Stanton told the commerce investigations subcommittee that the unused film—called outtakes—was the equivalent of a newsman's notes and protected from subcommittee scrutiny by the First Amendment.

Subcommittee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., told Stanton that by his refusal to testify on the editing practices or to turn over the film "in my opinion you are now in contempt of Congress."

Staggers, also chairman of the House Commerce Committee, said the subcommittee probably will meet next week to formally consider the contempt motion. If approved by the Commerce Committee and the House, it would be sent to the Justice Department for prosecution.

None of the four subcommittee members agreed with Stanton's claim the outtakes were protected by the First Amendment and Staggers rejected the network executive's claim that the subcommittee's action would have a "chilling" effect on network television reporting.

Staggers said "and you talk about chilling effects. This (media) runs chills up and down the spine. When there is untruth put on these networks they can control this land and you know they can if they allow this to go on."

At one point, Staggers recalled his 20 years of friendship with Stanton and said he did not blame Stanton for the allegedly distorted editing techniques in "The Selling of the Pentagon," but "I blame your organization."

Stanton replied, "Please, Mr. Staggers don't separate me from my organization because these are the men I have put in the organization."

Public Hearing Slated By Rhinebeck Board

RHINEBECK — A public hearing has been set for July 7 for a special permit allowing Grand Union to construct a 24,000 square foot food store on its Astor Flats property.

The 8 p.m. hearing will be conducted by the Town of Rhinebeck Zoning Board Appeals in the Town Hall.

The Planning Board has conditionally approved the Grand Union petition, as has the Dutchess County Planning Department. A recommendation by the county is that acceleration and deceleration traffic strips be added to Route 9 in the vicinity of the new shopping center.

The facility is proposed with parking for 200 cars on 12 acres of the 15 acres purchased, with the store occupying most of the remainder.

And it has been reported that neither the Red Hook or Rhinebeck Grand Union stores will close in the immediate future. The store would be located between the two villages, and if all goes well, it is anticipated that it will be ready for business by the end of 1971.

Largest Family Gathering Listed For IBM Employes, Families at Storytown

KINGSTON — A picnic menu that boasts 20,000 hot dogs, 15,000 hamburgs and 40,000 sodas will be featured at what is billed as the world's largest family gathering this Saturday at Storytown.

Approximately 1,900 Kingston plant IBMers and their families will swell the ranks of the expected 12,000 from that industrial family to attend the event. IBM Clubs from Kingston, East Fishkill Poughkeepsie and Burlington, Vt., are joining efforts in arranging the gigantic outing.

To cope with the crowd, the 77-acre amusement area near Lake George is arranging additional parking. Most of those attending will be going by private vehicle although some buses have been chartered at the four IBM locations.

In addition to the main picnic menu offerings, 14,000 ice cream cups have been ordered for refreshment concessions to be set up by the sponsoring IBM Clubs. There will be a separate food area for the family outing. Special admission prices have been arranged.

Kingston IBM families will have the whole summer to rest up for the local Family Bonanza to be held here Sept. 11. Donald Martin, Kingston IBM Club director, said that plans are being made for a club-sponsored gala which will feature a big-top circus, stage show, flea market and other attractions at a nominal charge on that date.

Meanwhile, the Storytown picnic ants are sharpening their teeth for the leftover goodies from Saturday's giant menu.

"The Catskill Region provides a unique resource to the state and nation," Rockefeller said, "making the commission's job of developing sound economic and social planning measures for the area of vital importance."

Members of the Catskill commission have yet to be appointed.

"One of the basic tasks confronting the commission will be to investigate and make recommendations concerning measures by which the region may draw upon the resources of nearby heavily populated areas, but, at the same time, protect itself from unplanned economic development," Rockefeller said.

Study of Catskills Gains Rocky's Approval

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A bill creating a special commission to study the Catskills has gained the approval of Gov. Rockefeller, along with instructions to develop a plan to protect the region.

"One of the basic tasks confronting the commission will be to investigate and make recommendations concerning measures by which the region may draw upon the resources of nearby heavily populated areas but, at the same time, protect itself from unplanned economic development," Rockefeller said Thursday in signing the bill.

The commission will study the conservation and development of the natural resources of the Catskill region, covering the counties of Delaware, Sullivan, Ulster, Greene, Otsego, Schoharie, Chenango and Albany.

A similar commission drafted a plan last year for the Adirondacks, and it was passed, with revisions, by the legislature.

Old Rhinebeck Firehouse Is Becoming Gift Shop

RHINEBECK — The old Rhinebeck Firehouse served its purpose for scores of years, but Saturday it will open its doors as the "Beekman Arms Fire House Gift Shop."

Located on West Market Street behind the Beekman Arms Hotel, the old firehouse was bought by Charles LaForge, hotel proprietor, a year ago by bidding $10,000 to the Village of Rhinebeck.

And with the moving of all fire equipment to the new Rhinebeck Firehouse on East Market Street two months ago, LaForge lost no time in remodeling the first floor and the exterior of the facade is keeping with its new function.

He advertises a wide variety of imported and native hand-crafted items to be included in the merchandise.

LaForge and partner, Vi Supplies, will be the official welcoming committee to the gift shop Saturday.

Garbage Pickup Tonight at 6

KINGSTON — City residents east of Broadway in the uptown section will have their garbage picked up at 6 p.m. tonight instead of at midnight, as previously notified.

Woodrow M. Diehl, administrative assistant of the Department of Public Works, said that the garbage collection time schedule will remain the same. Residents of that area had been notified on Tuesday by posters on their garbage cans that the collection time would be changed from 6 p.m. to midnight.

That was a result of independent action taken by workers with the garbage contractor, Diehl said. That situation has been rectified, Diehl added, and collections will take place on schedule.

Jetport Film Showing Tonight

NEW PALTZ — The film "Unwanted Sound" will be shown at the First National Bank of Highland, New Paltz Branch, at 8 o'clock tonight under the sponsorship of the Concerned Citizens Stop the Jetport Action Committee of New Paltz.

According to the committee, this film was made by residents of Hempstead, L.I., who live approximately the same distance from Kennedy Airport as New Paltz residents live from Stewart Field, and details their fight against noise and air pollution.

Ellenville Central School Adopts an Austerity Budget

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE — The Ellenville Central School District has adopted an austerity budget, and is presently subject to all the restrictions of an austerity budget under state law. On July 6 voting will be held on 12 propositions to determine which services district voters wish the school district to provide beyond those allowed in a straight austerity budget.

Ellenville Superintendent of Schools Thomas J. Hayden said this is a point many district residents have not yet grasped.

As an example, he cited transportation. Many district residents believe that the district will not return to the two mile for K-8 and three mile for 9-12 specified under an austerity budget. Hayden said the school district, having adopted an austerity budget (which requires no voter approval) already had. In order to return to the district's former 7 mile for K-6 and one mile for 7-12, district voters must approve Proposition 4 authorizing the district to do Proposition 4 carries a price tag of $64,850, but Hayden said this is misleading. Under present law, approximately 90 per cent of this is reimbursable by the state. The actual price tag would be about $6,500. If the proposition is approved it would mean about $4.09 per $1,000 on the tax rate.

Proposition 2 would authorize the schools to spend $70,800 to purchase books for elementary school children, instructional supplies, library books, and magazines for all children, and rent musical instruments. It would add $4.46 to the tax rate.

Proposition 1 would add $24,500 to the budget to employ one Spanish-English teacher (bilingual), one reading teacher, and to conduct an in-service program. This adds $1.54 to the tax rate.

Proposition 3 would add $23,700 to the budget for inter-scholastic sports and co-curricular activities. Hayden felt these programs to be connected closely with the fight against drug abuse in the Ellenville area. This would add $1.50 to the tax rate.

Proposition 9 provides $9,000 for the operation of the swimming pool for the summer. Hayden said he had gone as far as the money in last year's budget would take him. If this proposition is approved, he has a contractor standing by to do the caulking and repairs, and it will take an additional week or 10 days to fill the pool before it is ready for use. This would add $.77 to the tax rate.

Other propositions deal with capital outlay; cafeteria; teacher aides; adult education and community use; repairs and replacements of equipment; field trips, conferences, and assemblies; and a professional negotiator.

If all propositions were approved, it would add about $19.87 to the austerity budget's $131.98 per $1,000 tax rate. The austerity budget alone totals $3,396,790, higher than last year's total budget of $3,350,761, though the tax rate would be lower than last year's $132.54 per $1,000.

If all propositions are approved, the total budget will be higher than originally submitted because the $15,500 district voters would not authorize the transportation fund has to be added to the austerity budget as it is a legally incurred debt, and a boiler went out in the Pine Grove School, and its cost of replacement was added to the budget after the initial vote.

Burns of Arm Suffered by City Fireman

KINGSTON

A Kingston fireman sustained burns of the left arm Thursday afternoon while assisting at a fire that erupted in a road widener machine at the Ulster County Highway Department yards on Quarry Road.

Fireman Frank Purcell received first degree burns. Engines 1 and 2, Trucks 1 and 2, Wicks Salvage Unit and Excelsior Hose Company responded to an alarm at 3:24 p.m., and on arrival they found fire burning in the engine and hydraulic line areas of the heavy machine.

Chemicals and a booster line were used to quell the flames. Firemen said a mechanic was working on the engine when the fire broke out. Chief James M. Brett and Captain Francis T. Argulewicz were in charge of firefighters at the scene.

Ulster Town P.O. Closing

KINGSTON

Post Office Contract Station No. 1 at Vincent Street in the Town of Ulster will be closed at 5 p.m. today.

Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk said the contractor Mrs. Ethel Jackson, gave up the contract and no longer wishes to continue.

The Kingston postmaster is trying to arrange for a new contract for a contract station in the Town of Ulster. As soon as a contract can be arranged for the operation of the station, the public will be notified.

The contract station must be located in the area between Ulster Shopping Plaza to Ulster Hose Company fire station, or could be situated on a side street in this area, he said. Town of Ulster customers may avail themselves of postal services in the interim at the Cornell Street Main Post Office in Kingston.

Horse Meat

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Three hundred horses and 200 mules are butchered at the Mexico City slaughterhouse every day and then sold at first-class restaurants and self-serve supermarkets as cattle meat, the head of the Slaughterhouse Workers Union said today.

Manuel Alvarez, the union leader, said the general public can't tell the difference. He said the horsemeat is pounded and chemicals are added to it to make it softer. As for the mulemeat, it has the same color as veal, he said.

Funds for FBI

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House, responding to J. Edgar Hoover's statements the FBI does not have enough money to keep track of violent organizations, has voted a 140 million increase in the agency's operating funds.

In a 225 to 147 vote Thursday, the House approved all of the $334.5 million Hoover had said was needed to fight crime and subversion during the new fiscal year.

Tranquility on Campus

The eerie tranquility which has settled over the campuses, as noted earlier by Kingman Brewster, president of Yale University, may be only relative. But the changes the past year have brought may bring an unwanted quiet on the campus for reasons other than that the youth of America are confused and alienated, as they have been in recent years.

For instance, it was fashionable a year ago to forego cap and gown and boldly swagger up to the rostrum to receive a diploma in mufti. There are some who still express their defiance in this manner, but they are far outnumbered by the caps and gowns which again are fashionable.

Students also have learned that political activism and revolutionary slogans won't bring down the walls of the system. They are surprised to find that their outrageous behavior of yesterday is the accepted norm of today. It doesn't produce earth shocks any more. This makes them wonder if it is worth the trouble.

Authoritative voices analyzing the new mood offer suggestions:

Prof. David Riesman of Harvard says that the killing of an innocent graduate student in the terrorist bombing of the mathematics building at the University of Wisconsin last year was the turning point. Students for the first time saw that radicals were ready to kill, that liberals were not. They did not want to kill, nor did they want to be thought liberals. They were lost.

Prof. Kenneth Keniston, psychologist of the Yale Medical School, put it another way in his commencement address at Notre Dame University: "When rhetoric culminated in murder, then the members of the student movement had to face for the first time their own complicity with the very violence against which they struggled."

Students have gone through rebellion, then disillusionment, and now apathy. Hopefully, they will awaken to maturity and responsibility.

$100 Million Airport Racket

A grant of immunity to Robert F. Cudak, 29, the first to be granted under the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, brought a stream of names of alleged fences, mobsters and thieves to the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee. Cudak revealed a ring of mail and airport thefts mounting to as much as $300 million in four years. Cudak himself got $1 million of the loot, which he said he gambled at Las Vegas and New York.

One of those whom Cudak named as an associate, James V. Schafer, 29, took the Fifth Amendment repeatedly before the committee. Then he said he would tell everything if granted immunity. But William E. Ricci, 46, identified as a key member of the theft team run by Cudak, took the Fifth 88 times when asked about the massive thefts, gangland murders, and his alleged connection with organized crime.

One thing the talkative witness proved was that the thieves who work for the mob get very little for the risks they take. The mob keeps the big money and gives them spending money. Jewelry and furs were the big objectives until recently. They used to burn common stocks until a market for securities developed in the underworld.

Standing alongside the jewelry, furs, cash and other valuables, were classified government documents shipped in pouches of registered mail. Cudak got rid of these documents. He soon learned they were hot. He did glance at them but did not try to dispose of them.

Obviously, airport security is deplorable. For a gang to purloin $300 million worth of valuables at major airports in this country in a four-year spree destroys any confidence in registered mail. Whatever happens to the organized crime thieves and their bosses, the first thing that must happen is that airport and mail security are made robbery proof.

"Think of it! We're the first men on earth ever to drive a $13-million car!"

Monkey on His Back

David Lawrence Says Publication of Documents Bad Publicity for U.S.

WASHINGTON — All over the world they are talking about what is being called the "Pentagon Study." It is being regarded generally as an authoritative document — even though it isn't at all comprehensive, and in many respects isn't even authentic. Yet newspapers here and in European countries are commenting on it as if it were telling the "inside" story of how the United States fumbled the ball in its efforts to handle the Vietnam problem.

But the men who are out of high office today — those who served in the Kennedy administration and in the Johnson administration — as well as those who are officials of the Nixon administration know that the problem wasn't as simple as some of the researchers and critics are trying to make it appear. For unquestionably one of the consequences will be a prolongation of the war.

The Hanoi government, for instance, after reading the comments in the American press, will be led to conclude that there is no need to make any concessions to the United States government at the peace negotiations in Paris or to reduce military efforts in the months ahead when American troop withdrawals will approach the final stages.

The major question is whether the Communists have been helped, directly or indirectly, through the influence upon American public opinion by the publication of the incomplete and perhaps misleading "study." This has tended to disparage the American government — its sincerity and its integrity — and to give the impression that the United States had only a sinister purpose in entering and continuing the war in Vietnam. The noble and honorable objectives of saving a small nation from being crushed by Communist dictatorship now is being brushed aside as inconsequential.

Even in this country, the idea of furnishing help to the weak nations in other parts of the world is considered by some persons as something to be avoided. Yet, as one looks back to the days before World War I and before World War II, when "isolationists" used the same arguments and America was regarded as unwilling to give assistance to any of the free countries abroad, there was hardly any credence given to the suggestion that a world war might prove to be the ill-fated result of it all.

Today, when both Red China and the Soviet Union possess nuclear weapons and the United States is pledged to protect its allies in Europe and Asia, there has again been a decided shift in public opinion in America toward "isolationism." The anti-Vietnam War agitators have convinced many people — perhaps even a majority — that the United States had no business getting into the Vietnam War and should pull out at once, even though this amounts to a surrender.

Some of the editorials in European papers indicate a belief on the part of foreign peoples and governments that the United States will have a difficult time coming to the aid of its allies if they should be threatened with an attack. The Vietnam War by itself may not seem to be of any importance in world affairs. Many people don't know exactly where the country is on the map. But the nations of Asia know that the Soviet Union and Red China have been supplying billions of dollars in munitions and equipment to the North Vietnamese.

Supposedly, progress is being made in talks with the Soviet Union about limitation of armaments. But in an atmosphere in which the United States government is made to appear weak and irresolute and presumably ready to throw in the sponge, it is hard to believe that the Russians will make concessions leading to any international agreements on the restriction on strategic arms.

The publication of the "Pentagon Study" has done a great deal of harm. Any document that leaves the impression that the government of the United States has engaged in deception, any incomplete research that persuades the people that their elected officials are not conscientious and are merely concerned with political "games" is bound to swing public opinion away from them.

The printing of the "Pentagon Study" has been a piece of bad publicity for the American government. It is unfortunate that some of the top men in the Johnson administration and the Nixon administration have not denounced it in vigorous terms. The American people should be told that the United States government has been endeavoring to perform a real service in Southeast Asia — and intends to continue to aid the cause of small nations who may be subjected any day to aggression by the Communists.

TWICE TOLD TALES OF STORYTELLERS AND DREAMERS

Some columnists are great "idea" men. Others strive to perfect a style of writing. A few achieve one or the other. The rest fail in varying degrees. Walter Winchell, who was always hustling his friends for "items," was neither a writer nor an idea man. And yet, for a couple of decades, he was the greatest of them all.

Ironically, the thing I remember best about WW is not an item; it's a short story. He told about a well-known doctor who was intoxicated while treating a patient. When the man died, the doctor's career ended. Overnight he disappeared.

On New York's Lower East Side, there was an empty stable and a hayloft. An aging man rented it and stuck his name on a cross in the grass. It read: "Doctor Brown — Upstairs." For years, Doctor Brown treated the poor. If they had some coins to give him, he accepted with thanks. If they had nothing, the treatment cost nothing.

In time, the poverty-stricken formed queue lines down the stairs of the stable. The people trusted Doctor Brown as no other man of medicine. One day he was found dead behind the rolltop desk he kept upstairs. The poor chipped in their dimes and quarters to give Doc a decent burial. The hearse was followed by hundreds of people. At the cemetery, someone moaned: "We forgot to chip in for a headstone." He ran all the way back to the East Side.

When he returned, the poor were still mulling prayers. A piece of wood was stuck in the ground. It read: "Doctor Brown — Upstairs."

Another columnist, a good idea man, was tossing mail into a basket. One was an invitation requesting him to attend a luncheon at the Waldorf Astoria to listen to a noted millionaire discuss "The Successful Formula for Better Business." The invitation went into the basket, and was retrieved. Along the back he wrote: "Guy is crook. Does time. When free, latches onto poor inventor, gives him peanuts for his discovery. Becomes highly successful. Last line he's invited to make speech on 'The Success Formula for Better Business.'"

A third writer, then on Park Row, saw a small item about a man who served half his life in prison for killing his wife, then located her alive and well when he attained his freedom. This writer opened his yarn by painting a portrait of a neighborhood which has not seen a certain lady in weeks. The husband, when questioned, says gruffly that "she's gone to visit some relatives in the west and good riddance."

In time, the neighbors tell the police. The cops question the husband. No one knew where his wife was. Men with shovels dug up the backyard and found a skeleton. A pathologist identified it as a female of uncertain age. Two dentists positively identified their work and the husband was arrested. He was convicted and given 20 years to life. He served 18 of them and was freed. He was a gray-haired bum with a walking stick. One day he saw his wife on a shopping street. "I sure put one over on you," she said happily. The old man beat her to death with his cane. The question was: Could the authorities try the man and convict him twice for the same crime?

All columnists had assistants. I was one with Mark Hellinger. One day a kid on the "Graphic" phoned me to meet him at the old Park Central Hotel. I did. "What's on your mind?" I said. He walked up and down a thin rug with his hand on his head. "I had this little column going on radio and I put the rap in on Walter Winchell. So they fired me."

I expressed proper sorrow and asked what this meant to me. "You and I," he said solemnly, "are going to Hollywood together and take the joint apart. You're a writer; I'm an idea man. I'll do the talking. You do the writing. We split down the middle."

I couldn't help laughing. Here stood a cipher with nothing asking me to quit a good job paying $80 a week.

"Nothing doing," I said. He appeared to be weary. "Maybe you're right," he said, "but we could make millions together." I shook hands and left. A down payment was put on a house. On Saturdays I took the girls to the matinee around the corner. Everything was great until the name, two stories high, came up on the screen: "Produced by Jerry Wald."

It gave me instantaneous heartburn...

Jack Anderson Says Unemployment, Dope, Despair Spell Another Hot Summer

WASHINGTON — Lawmen don't talk about it out loud, but they expect a big blow-up in the ghettos this summer.

All the explosive ingredients are present:

Unemployment — More than 40 per cent of the black teenagers in the ghettos can't find work. At the same time, most cities are short of money and are cutting recreational services. Millions of young blacks will be in the streets, lusting pocket money, stewing over their grievances, looking for trouble.

Addiction — Heroin addiction is centered in black urban ghettos. Of the nation's 250,000 heroin addicts, a disproportionate number are poor blacks. They must turn to crime to raise the $50 a day it costs to satisfy their craving.

Disillusion — Militant young blacks have abandoned any hope that the Nixon Administration will rescue them from poverty and discrimination. Increasingly, they regard revolution as the only solution. Many have been trained for violence by the Army.

All it will take, lawmen fear, is a hot summer to ignite the tinder.

Vietnam Secrets

Every administration has been less than frank with the public about what has been going on in Vietnam.

As far back as 1962, a State Department message, still classified, directed U.S. commanders in Vietnam not to take reporters on missions that might result in bad publicity.

"Ambassador has over-all authority for handling of newsmen, in so far as U.S. is concerned," read the message. "He will make decisions as to when newsmen permitted to go on any missions with U.S. personnel... Correspondents should not be taken on missions whose nature such that undesirable dispatches would be highly probable."

The message also ordered suppression of the fact that Americans in 1962 were already directing combat missions against the Viet Cong.

"It's not, repeat, not in our interest," cautioned the secret instructions, "to have stories indicating that Americans are leading and directing combat missions against Viet Cong... Sensational stories about children or civilians who become unfortunate victims of military operations are clearly inimical to national interest."

The message also warned sternly: "U.S. military and civilian personnel must see that (these instructions) are adhered to scrupulously and that Ambassador given complete cooperation if we are to avoid harmful press repercussions on both domestic and international scene."

Though this message has been superseded by others containing noble language about the public's right to non-security information, the original guidelines continue to be followed throughout the Vietnam War.

Air Force Firing

The Air Force recently urged a young officer to resign because of his views on Vietnam, then used his resignation as grounds for kicking him out.

Caught in the squeeze play was Lt. James Carr, a 1968 Air Force Academy graduate, who had planned an Air Force career but had gradually become disillusioned with the Vietnam War.

He joined the Concerned Officers Movement, and spoke to his immediate superiors of his misgivings. They suggested he should resign from the Air Force.

After talking it over with his wife, Carr submitted his resignation. His action had the approval of his superiors at the Macolm Grow Medical Center, Address Air Force Base, outside of Washington.

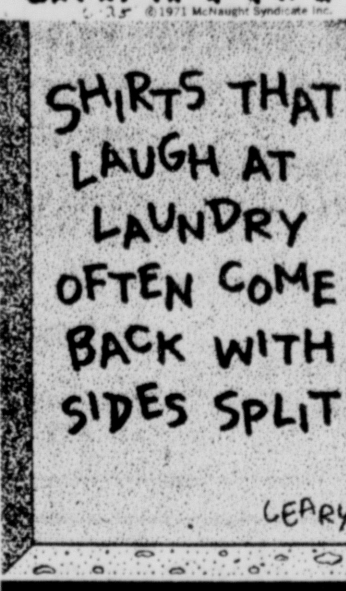

But meanwhile, he discussed his Vietnam views in an impromptu television interview after a Concerned Officers meeting. This raised the hackles on the back of Air Force Secretary Robert Seamans's neck. His office promptly called the base for Carr's records, which were hand-carried by helicopter to the Secretary.

Carr's next efficiency rating was low, and his resignation was cited as the reason for the drop. Then Seamans turned around and used the poor rating as justification for bouncing Carr out of the Air Force. Instead of letting him go ahead with his resignation, Seamans gave him an involuntary honorable discharge.

In other words, Carr was advised by his superiors to resign, then was fired from the Air Force for taking their advice. "It would be ludicrous, absurd if it weren't so underhanded," he told us.

Footnote: The Air Force insists Carr was ousted because his "performance over the past three years was below standard." Until his dissent, however, his work was rated "Outstanding" to "above average." As for the helicopter delivery of Carr's records, the Air Force said an officer happened to be going from Andrews to Seamans's office anyway and brought the papers along.

What 'Major Disclosures'?

LBJ Viet Actions Bared in '65

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The now celebrated Pentagon papers seem to be making their most sweeping impact with evidence Lyndon Johnson planned the bombing of North Vietnam while promising in the 1964 election campaign not to widen the war. But oddly enough, this word has been in public print for five years.

The New York Times describes as a "major disclosure" the evidence that a "general consensus" among top Johnson officials had been reached Sept. 7, 1964, on the probable need to mount air attacks against North Vietnam in 1965.

This evidence from the Pentagon's secret study is being put beside Johnson's 1964 campaign utterances as new proof of his "massive deception" in concealing his real Vietnam intentions from the American voters.

Only weeks after the Sept. 7, 1964, strategy meeting which produced the reported "consensus" for bombing, LBJ said on the hustings:

"We don't want our American boys to do the fighting for Asian boys."

Well, if what the Times now prints is a "major disclosure," then everybody — statesmen, diplomats, politicians, press and public — has been asleep at the switch. If they were going to be stunned, as they say they are today, they should have been stunned in the fall of 1965.

At that time, Newsweek magazine's then White House correspondent, Charles Roberts, reached print with a book called "LBJ's Inner Circle." Its opening chapter is a case history of presidential decision-making in a crisis. And the crisis was the Feb. 6, 1965, Viet Cong assault on a U.S. installation at Pleiku in central South Vietnam, which killed eight and wounded more than 100. Johnson's decision was for retaliatory air strikes Feb. 7 against North Vietnam. Writes Roberts on page 20 of his book:

"His action that night (Feb. 6)—the order that sent U.S. bombers roaring over a remote North Vietnamese village named Dong Hoi — was far from impulsive. As a matter of fact, he had made the momentous decision to bomb North Vietnam nearly four months earlier."

"That decision was made, it can now be revealed, in October, 1964, at the height of the presidential campaign. President Johnson, who had sought unsuccessfully to keep Vietnam out of the campaign, decided then that South Vietnam — and the United States — were losing that frustrating 10-year-old war.

Note that the Pentagon study talks of "consensus" among senior Johnson officials at a Sept. 7 meeting, while Roberts speaks of October.

But note also that the study does not say specifically that on Sept. 7 "the President decided to bomb." It says his advisers reached that judgment. So Roberts' report — straight from Johnson's mouth — is much harder news. It speaks of the President's own decision.

There is no space here to go into the reasons LBJ gave for implementing the decision to bomb, and said nothing about it. In the interview that spring of 1965, however, he plainly underplayed the possibility that action or announcement of his intent would have had effect upon his race with Barry Goldwater, maligned then as "warmonger."

However Johnson's behavior in 1964 may be characterized, there he was in mid-1965 boldly telling Roberts what he had done. Yet, in this city where "sophisticated" observers usually grab every clue to inside history, nobody really picked it up.

Where the hell were we all?

Brydges Helped Present Strike

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — One of the more interesting stories making the rounds here is how Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges helped to head off the threatened strike of state government workers. It fascinates people on the inside of government, and it deserves to be told — as a postscript to the settlement — if only to show that heroes do indeed come from the strangest places.

On the surface, at least, Brydges would appear to be one of the least likely people to serve as a tranquilizing factor in a swordpoint confrontation between government and its employees.

The reason is that he has come to be regarded as the legislature's most outspoken advocate of stern disciplinary measures in dealing with truculent needs by public employee unions.

Almost annually, the Niagara Falls Republican takes the Senate floor to denounce strikes or threatened strikes by public employees. He has characterized them as acts of "rebellion" or "insurrection against the government" — or even "treason."

That's what he did two weeks ago when New York City workers staged a wildcat strike in support of their demands for a more liberal pension plan. Brydges reacted by killing their pension bill, plus 27 other public-employee pension bills for good measure.

Yet, he stepped in and poured enough oil on the waters to break a deadlock between Gov. Rockefeller's administration and the Civil Service Employees Association and thus avert a strike that would have hurt both the government and the union. It happened this way:

En route to a Catskill

Mountains resort for a couple of days of golfing and fishing, Brydges was apprised of the fact that negotiations between the state and the union had become stalemated and that talks had been broken off.

What he did was to stop at his Capitol office and call in the union's attorney, John C. Rice. From Rice he obtained a copy of a letter that the union wanted Rockefeller to issue. It would have committed the state to rehire by Aug. 1 all employees that had been laid off in the current economy drive.

Brydges told Rice that he was asking for too flat a commitment. He urged the union to allow the state some leeway. Rice then left and returned a bit later with a new version of the letter. This one said in effect that the state would try to rehire as many as possible.

As soon as Rice left, Brydges turned over the letter to Rockefeller's negotiators, T. Norman Hurd and Abe Lavine. He suggested that they use it as the basis for one final attempt to work out a settlement. They agreed.

Brydges then trundled off to the Catskills, where he learned the next morning that the dispute had been settled along the lines he had helped to initiate.

The CSEA was grateful for his intervention. President Theodore Wenzl said Brydges had steered the union and the state off its "collision course."

The administration seemed less inclined to give him credit. The official line was that — well — Brydges had "made a couple of phone calls." That's all.

Brydges himself said later that "I didn't do much, actually." But he said it with a grin. And he was plainly pleased.

Eban Critical of Dayan, Berates Ex-Air Force Chief

By United Press International
Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban today criticized Defense Minister Moshe Dayan for saying an outbreak of a new war in the Middle East is inevitable and berated former Air Force Chief Ezer Weizman for saying Israel should occupy Cairo if a new war breaks out.

Signs of other dissension came from Premier Golda Meir who told Bar Ilan University students today Israel faced a greater threat from internal division and strife than from its belligerent Arab neighbors. She apparently referred to a recent rash of strikes and a threat by the National Religious party to withdraw from the coalition government.

Israel also was having major difficulties with Arab guerrillas both in the Gaza Strip and in the occupied Golan Heights section of Syria this week. No Israeli casualties were reported. There have been a series of terrorist acts in the Gaza Strip.

Eban set forth his views in an interview with the Tel Aviv evening newspaper Yedioth Aharonoth.

He said Israel should pursue efforts to reopen the Suez Canal under an interim agreement with Cairo but admitted chances for such an accord were slim. He also called for concentrated effort to highlight Soviet efforts to disrupt the international equilibrium through Russia's pact with Egypt.

Then he turned to Dayan's recent statement that a new outbreak of war appeared inevitable and said: "I do not join public predictions the resumption of war in the Middle East is inevitable, because of two main reasons. First of all, I think this evaluation is factually incorrect because it does not take into account the weight of the deterrent factors at work on both sides. Secondly, I think such predictions don't do us any good."

Then he turned to Weizman's statement that Israel should capture Cairo to force Egypt to sign a peace treaty and said: "This is a theory divorced of every political and military reality. This is a dream, a night dream, a nightmare, to be more exact. Such an adventure will yield unnecessary losses because no political objectives will thus be achieved."

Navy Vet Indicted On Murder Charge

A 20-year-old Navy veteran today was indicted by a grand jury on a charge of murder in the fatal rifle shooting of a 26-year-old man in Saxton on the morning of March 25.

Peter John Fogarty, 236 Washington Avenue, Saugerties, is accused of slaying William Conley of Route 1, Box 301, Saugerties at the home of Walter and Arlene Dill on Route 32A, Saxton, Town of Saugerties, Arlene Dill is Fogarty's sister. At the time of the original investigation, State Police said Fogarty and Conley were overnight guests at the Dill residence. Authorities said in retracting the events on the morning of the shooting, that Fogarty and the Dills were on the second floor of the home and Conley was downstairs watching television.

Fogarty, police said, allegedly went back downstairs and shot Conley with a .22 caliber rifle as the victim watched television. The indictment was part of a report handed up to County Judge Raymond J. Mino.

In other cases before Mino today, Carlos Cruz, 26, of 13 Clifton Avenue, Ellenville, was sentenced to three years in prison. He had been indicted for assault first and criminal possession of dangerous drugs, marijuana, as the result of police investigation of a stabbing that occurred after a New Year's Eve party on Jan. 1 in a house on Hill Street, Ellenville. The charges were consolidated and the defendant pleaded guilty previously.

The victim of the assault was Wayne Lopez, 28, of Eden Court, Ellenville who police said had been stabbed through the left lung and heart.

Woodstock Democrats To Name New Chairman

WOODSTOCK
Stepping down as Woodstock Democratic Town Chairman, John Bonilla will yield the reins of the party in the art colony to Irwin Goldstein. Bonilla will also seek the nomination to run as the candidate for Town Supervisor on the Democratic slate this fall.

Bonilla, an employee of IBM, served as town chairman for some six years. He has officially resigned as of June 28; will be succeeded by Goldstein, incumbent Woodstock assessor who is active in civic and community affairs, and considered one of the party's best speakers.

The resigning town chairman will be nominated to make the run for supervisor at the Democratic caucus, scheduled tonight at 8 p.m. in town hall. Also expected to be nominated on this evening's slate are:

$1,150 Worth of Whiskey Stolen From Wiltwyck CC
KINGSTON
Authorities today were looking for burglars who forced their way into the liquor room at the Wiltwyck Country Club on Lucas Avenue Extension and carted off assorted whiskeys and champagne valued at more than $1,150.

Investigator Harold T. Bowers said entry was gained by smashing a glass in a door leading from a patio to the liquor storage room. A hasp was ripped off the inside door and 18 cases of assorted whiskey and two cases of champagne were taken.

The intruders also ripped open a cigarette machine and stole the cash contents of an undetermined amount.

William Kronenberg, incumbent assessor and Ontario faculty member, who will make the race for County Legislator;

Martin Henderson, an attorney, who will be nominated for a two-year term as town justice; and Joshua Koplovitz, also an attorney, and making the run for a four-year term as town justice.

Two candidates have announced their intention of vying for the councilman's seat. Expected to be nominated tonight are Michael Boyle, Ontario administrator, and Aileen Cramer, long-time Woodstock resident.

Tonight's Democratic caucus marks the first time any party in any town in the county has held its nominating convention so early in an election year. Bonilla said the reason for this is that 1971 is an "unusual political year."

Dear Abby Long Hair and Legs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: When I see a woman in pants I wonder what's wrong with her legs. I cannot for the life of me understand why a woman with good-looking legs would wear pants. And another thing, men love long hair on their women. I don't know one man who likes to see a woman in a mannish haircut. Give us men long hair and short skirts!

LOVES THE LADIES

DEAR LOVES: Some women wear pants for convenience, but if a woman wants to please a man, she will indeed let her locks grow and her legs show.

DEAR ABBY: I own a really good horse and I am going to enter him in the horse show soon. My girl friend asked me if she could ride him in the horse show and I told her she could. Here is my problem. If my horse wins a ribbon, who should get it, she or I? I will leave it up to you.

GIRL HORSE OWNER: KENLY, N.C.

DEAR HORSE OWNER: If your horse should win a ribbon, the ribbon goes to you. (I got this straight from the horse's mouth.)

DEAR ABBY: It's a cinch

that bachelor who would like to marry a woman with children doesn't live in Phoenix! I am a divorcee with three school-age children, a pretty good job and not quite enough support money, but I don't feel that my children need a live-in father, and I am not suffering for need of a husband.

Every time I meet a man and he finds out I have three children, he bolts for the nearest door. What an inflated ego he has to believe that I would want to marry HIM! I don't dislike men (on the contrary!), but the man who can sweet-talk me into trading my new-found freedom for another dunking in the cess-pool of marriage will have to be some man!

SINGLE BY CHOICE

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to unwed mothers ("let a fellow get to know you better before pouring out the story of your life, but tell him the truth as soon as it becomes apparent that he is seriously interested in you.") was right on!

Make a sauce of the following:
Boil two cups sugar

Diamond Jim Special

One pound hamburger
One chopped onion
Brown together, adding dash of salt, nutmeg and cinnamon.
Brown all together until about two-thirds done. Add one pkg. defrosted chopped spinach (squeeze out most of excess water — but not too dry). Cover, cook a few minutes and add four scrambled eggs.
Cook until eggs are done.

This dish easily divides and multiplies. And for the families who aren't spinach eaters it is equally good with broccoli or french style green beans.

Gugelhupf

One pkg. dry active yeast
Six egg yolks
One-quarter cup sugar
One-half tsp. salt
Three-quarters cup milk, scalded and cooled
One-third silvered, blanched almonds
One-quarter cup lukewarm water

Three-quarters cup butter
Two and one-half cups flour
Grated rind of one lemon or two tsp. prepared rind and one tsp. lemon juice

One-half cup raisins
Confectionery sugar
Dissolve yeast in water. Beat yolks and sugar together. Beat in yeast mixture at a slow speed; from this point the batter must be handled with care. Combine flour, salt and lemon rind and beat slowly into the batter alternately with the milk. Beat until batter is smooth and elastic (about three minutes).

Stir in raisins and almonds and pour into a well-greased nine inch (two qt.) gugelhupf pan. (If a gugelhupf pan is not available, a bundt pan or a fluted jello mold may be substituted). Cover with plastic wrap and a moist towel and set to rise for two and one-half to four hours or until the mixture fills the pan. Slower rising provides a finer, moister bread. Bake for ten minutes at 400 degrees and then for twenty-five minutes at 350 degrees. Cool for at least ten minutes before turning out. Closely wrap in tin foil and store for twenty-four hours. Sprinkle with confectionery sugar before serving.

Frazenas

(Bread)

Italian toasted bread with anise seed
Five lbs. of flour
One and one-half tablespoons of salt
Two tablespoons of anise seed
Three small dry yeast dissolved in one and one-half cups of water

One-quarter cup crisco
Six eggs
Two cups of water

In bowl mix flour, salt and anise seed, set aside. In another bowl scramble eggs, add crisco, yeast mixture and water, mix well. Add about half of the flour to the egg mixture and beat vigorously with a wooden spoon, at least 75 strokes.

Add more flour, one-half at a time, to make dough stiff (caution) keep dough on the soft side rather than too stiff. Turn dough out onto a floured board and allow to rest ten minutes; invert the mixing bowl over the resting dough to prevent drying.

Knead dough until it is smooth and satiny, about ten minutes or until it springs back when pressed with a finger.

Shape the dough into a ball and place it in a mixing bowl which has been greased. Grease the surface of the dough slightly with melted fat or oil; cover smooth. Form into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk about one and one-half to two hours.

Punch down the dough and two rectangular sheets about one-quarter inch thick. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll in jelly roll fashion and shape into rings. Place on greased baking sheet and cut with scissors at 1-inch intervals almost through ring. Turn slices slightly. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 F.) 25 to 30 minutes. While warm, frost with confectioners' frosting and sprinkle one cup chopped dried fruit on dough before rolling. Make two rings.

HOW WILL NEWLYWEDS FARE WITH FOOD?

What directions will they follow in regard to food? asks Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. Do they think about nutrition and the need for nourishing food in order to keep up that glow of health and youth?

Parents may think that they have little influence, but when the bride starts preparing meals she usually does just what she has seen her mother do. She buys the same kinds of foods and expects her bridegroom to like what she likes. When he comes from a different background than hers she may be in for quite a list of surprises.

Getting started together from a common basis could come from planning together. A very complete, no cost file, can be picked up from our

Opinion of Village Attorney

Ellenville Still Has Traffic Plan

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE
On the basis of the available facts, the Village of Ellenville really does have a traffic plan after all. The traffic plan is last year's one-way streets.

Freeman his legal opinion was that if one-way streets had been properly adopted by ordinance, preceded by a legally advertised public hearing, then the plan could be rescinded, whether the ordinance was adopted for a trial period or not, by another ordinance, with another legally advertised public hearing.

In simple language, the only way to get rid of a properly adopted ordinance is another properly adopted ordinance. An examination of the village records and minutes by The Freeman with Village Clerk Lillian Finkelstein revealed that the ordinance starting one-way streets in Ellenville was adopted

June 1, 1970, following a legal advertised public hearing. The stipulation was made in the resolution to adopt the ordinance that the ordinance would be for a trial period of unspecified length. One-way streets were not an unqualified success in Ellenville. In fact, about 600 village residents signed petitions stating that one-way streets in Ellenville were bad to the point of being unbearable. It is recorded in the village minutes that a resolution was passed to hold a public hearing on the question at the Sept. 1, 1970 meeting of the Village Board. The public was heard, loudly and clearly, and the board discontinued the plan by resolution, with only Trustee DeWitt Clinton voting against discontinuance saying it was a "step backward."

they were just going to declare the trial over. The minutes show that the board discontinued one-way streets on the basis of a simple resolution, not by ordinance. According to the opinion given by The Freeman by Nirenberg, since there was no legally advertised public hearing and no ordinance involved in rescinding the one-way street ordinance, they did not rescind it at all. One-way streets are still the law in Ellenville.

Threatened With Arrest, Jews End Hunger Strike

MOSCOW (UPI)—A group of 33 Baltic Jews on a hunger strike for permission to immigrate to Israel ended their demonstration under threat of arrest today, a spokesman for the group said.

At the same time, nine Jews in Kishinev, Moldavia, were on trial for going too far in their efforts to reach Israel. They were accused of disseminating anti-Soviet literature and of having a role in an abortive 1970 hijack plan and face a possible seven years in prison. The Moscow demonstrators, all from Latvia and Lithuania, had spent two nights in the city's central post office without interference from police. Today, spokesmen said, an official of the Committee For State Security (KGB, or secret police) came to them and informed them that they would be arrested if they tried to remain another night.

The official said workers at the post office complained that their presence interfered with postal business and the demonstrators could be arrested on the basis of that complaint. The strikers were among hundreds of persons sitting in large waiting halls of the post office which is open 24 hours a day. The demonstrators carried no signs or other identifying marks and it was difficult to discern that a demonstration was taking place.

Spokesmen said the group decided to abandon the hunger strike and return home to await a decision from local authorities on their emigration applications. The spokesmen said they would consider resuming the strike if they receive no satisfaction. Although it is commonplace in the West, a public protest demonstration in the Soviet Union was unheard of until this year when militant Jewish groups began pressing their demands for exit permits. The government, which in years past would have arrested such demonstrators wholesale, responded instead by increasing tenfold the number of permits for Jews seeking to go to Israel.

The Kishinev trial, now in its fifth day, was the latest in a series of prosecutions growing out of a 1970 plan to hijack a Soviet airplane by a group of Leningrad Jews. Soviet secret police arrested the would-be hijackers and a score of other Jews in several Soviet cities.

Art Collection Brings Record 8.7 Million

LONDON (AP)—Titian's "Death of Actaeon" and 26 other Old Masters were sold at Christie's auction house today for a record $8,735,580.

Although the total was the highest in art history for a one-day auction, it fell considerably short of the $20 million which one expert had predicted.

The Titian went to a London dealer, Julius Weitzner, for $4,032,000. He refused to say who he bought it for, telling an interviewer, "I do not know where the picture is going."

Weitzner said he had been prepared to go higher. The price was the second highest ever paid at auction for a painting. The record was set last November at Christie's when the Metropolitan Museum of Art paid $5,544,000 for a Velasquez.

The sale was preceded by the usual public outcry that something be done to keep the Titian in Britain. But the National Gallery hasn't the money to buy it, and the government made clear that it wasn't going to help out.

There had been predictions the painting might go as high as $4.8 million. Dozens of security men were posted in the 205-year-old auction house to protect the art treasures. Police feared that a psychopath agitated by the wave of anger over the prospect of the Titian going to a foreigner, might try to damage the painting.

The painting depicts the leg end of Actaeon disturbing the goddess Diana at her bath. For his temerity, she changed him into a stag, and her dogs tore him to pieces. The picture is being sold by the Earl of Harewood, first cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, who needs the money to pay family death duties.

Also up for auction were paintings by Caravaggio, Veronese, Bassano, Rubens, Van Dyck, Frans Hals, Canaletto, Bellotto, Boucher, Fragonard and Greuze.

UCALD Accepting Registrations

KINGSTON
Children with learning disabilities may still be registered for the summer training program at the Edson School, according to Fred R. Christiana, publicity chairman for the Ulster County Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

The program is scheduled to begin Monday, July 12 at 9 a.m. and will run for four weeks with daily sessions of four hours a day, Monday through Friday until Aug. 6.

Registrations will be accepted until July 1. Further information may be obtained from Dr. Milton Chasin of Kingston. Thomas Sartori, assistant professor of elementary education at the Campus School, State University at New Paltz, will be the director of the program. The executive committee of UCALD feels the summer program will be beneficial to the children in that their educable-perceptual training will be uninterrupted. It is planned that some recreational physical education be given but most will be on perceptual and motor and sensory learning, based on the individual child's needs.

It is requested that a brief synopsis of the child be given by the parent in order that correction and training benefit the child in the area most needed.

Daily snacks will be provided and Sartori welcomes volunteers who would like to assist him in the program.

Boys Club Appoints New Program Director

The Kingston Boys Club will enter its 25th summer with a new program director and a new slate of recreational activities on June 28, according to John Holochuck, executive director.

Mike Karchmer was named recently as program director of the local Boy's Club. An Ellenville resident, Karchmer received a B.S. degree in history and physical education from the University of Bridgeport and also attended Bryant College in Providence, R.I. and Orange County Community College. Karchmer had worked at the Boy's Club since April.

Karchmer will guide the club this year in a number of activities, with most emphasizing physical development, recreation and education. Team sports, with squads for the Boy's Club competing with other area organizations, will highlight the activities available to youths 8-15 years of age.

Other activities scheduled for the club this summer include a physical fitness club, and informal games of volleyball, soccer, badminton and wiffle ball. Supervised instruction will also be given in tumbling, archery and riflery, with the latter two activities conducted in accordance with the safety rules of the New York State Conservation Department.

The Boys Club, in trying to supply a well-rounded program appealing to the interests of all the boys, has a fully stocked library that is always open. Adjacent to the library is an arts and crafts room where individual projects can be constructed.

Trips to important public places, historical sites and places of general interest are also being planned. Plans are also afoot to create an Adventure's Club, which would assist in developing the boys' knowledge of government activities.

Once a week during the coming summer months a special event will take place, including a hash track meet, carnival, sports clinics, treasure hunt, scavenger hunt and tournaments in wrestling, football, archery and riflery. Table game tournaments, such as bumper pool, ping pong and checkers also will be held.

Parents are reminded that applications for the Boy's Club Overnight Camping outing Aug. 8-28 are being accepted. The Kingston Boy's Club is a member organization of the United Way of Ulster County. The club's facilities on Greenkill Avenue will be open Monday through Friday from 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. beginning June 28.

Four Films Set at Library

A film program will be presented at Kingston Area Library Wednesday 7:30 p.m. The four films to be shown cover a wide range of interest and techniques in modern film making.

As in the previous film showings, there is no admission charge and the public is invited. This month's program will be held in the main building of the library.

The first film, Empty Hand, is a karate demonstration by black belt experts and has won ten major international film awards. Moods of Surfing is a color film made on the beaches of southern California and Hawaii. The scenes, without narration, present the sights, sounds, beauty and rhythm of the ocean.

By United Press International Tom Seaver of the New York Mets learned something from Rick Wise — If you want something done right, do it yourself. Seaver, a talented right-hander and the bulwark of the Mets' pitching staff, showed both prowess on the mound and with the bat Thursday night as he tossed a five-hitter and hit a game-winning homer to lead the Mets to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Seaver's effort wasn't as spectacular as that turned in by the Philadelphia performance tonight was the Phillies Wednesday night. (a no-hitter and two homers), but it came at the right time for the slumping Mets, who still trail the Pittsburgh Pirates by four games in the National League East.

DALLAS (UPI) —When Bob Hayes stepped into a Dallas Cowboy reception room filled with cameras, lights and reporters Thursday night he asked, "what's happening?"

Everyone laughed. He was the star of the show, having just signed a five-year, no-trade contract which would make him "one of the highest paid receivers in pro football."

The news conference ended a year's running battle between the premier receiver and the Cowboys' front office. Hayes said, however, "I never gave up hope playing with the Cowboys."

Before Hayes could answer any questions, a voice called out from an inner office. Hayes grinned at a nearby reporter as he walked back to the office and said, "they're going to put words in my mouth."

Whatever the words were didn't have much effect on what Hayes discussed. About the only thing he didn't reveal was the exact dollar amount of the contract preferring simply to say, "I guess you could say I am now one of the one or two highest paid receivers in pro football."

Asked if that put him ahead of his prospective teammate Lance Alworth (who has yet to sign after being traded to the Cowboys by San Diego), Hayes replied, "let's just say I'm one of them."

Hayes said when this contract runs out he will probably retire. And unless things get so bad he wants to leave, he will always be a Cowboy. Aside from the money, Hayes said the stipulation that the team could not

Seaver Paces Mets Over Expos

Hayes stepped into a Dallas Cowboy reception room filled with cameras, lights and reporters Thursday night he asked, "what's happening?"

Everyone laughed. He was the star of the show, having just signed a five-year, no-trade contract which would make him "one of the highest paid receivers in pro football."

The news conference ended a year's running battle between the premier receiver and the Cowboys' front office. Hayes said, however, "I never gave up hope playing with the Cowboys."

Before Hayes could answer any questions, a voice called out from an inner office. Hayes grinned at a nearby reporter as he walked back to the office and said, "they're going to put words in my mouth."

Whatever the words were didn't have much effect on what Hayes discussed. About the only thing he didn't reveal was the exact dollar amount of the contract preferring simply to say, "I guess you could say I am now one of the one or two highest paid receivers in pro football."

Hardship applicants will be handled in two groups. Players filing by Aug. 1 can be drafted in the September supplementary draft which will follow the same last-to-first order of the regular 1971 draft. If they file after Aug. 1 but before Dec. 1, and are approved as hardship cases, players would be eligible in the regular draft the following March. However, if teams choose players in the supplementary draft, they will lose the equivalent position in the next regular session. Thus, a club picking players in the first three rounds of the September draft would be giving up their first three picks in the March draft.

In the opinion of the owners, this legislation provides an orderly procedure and has sufficient teeth in it so there won't be abuses," Kennedy said. "At least we have an orderly procedure," he added. Kennedy said however that he would not make public the names of players seeking or receiving hardship status so they would apparently retain their college eligibility until the 11 in raising his record to 11.6 draft is announced.

City Opener To Merchants

KINGSTON The names were the same, only the uniforms were different as the City League baseball season opened last night in Dietz Stadium.

In the inaugural game, the Kingston Merchants (or was it the Kingston Braves or perhaps the UCCC Senators?) whipped Hurley V.F.W. (alias Rondout Valley High?) 8-1.

The loop is composed of six teams and the Merchants are defending champs, so their win in the opened couldn't be classified as much of a surprise. But the younger Hurley team did hold the lead for one-half inning before Kingston came back with five in the bottom of the first.

Billy Wilkens, soph second baseman for RVC and a Daily Freeman All-County selection, opened the game for Hurley by reaching first on shortstop Rich Freese's error. Wilkens came around to score on a base hit by Jules Chick.

That was all for Hurley as he held the opposition scoreless on Kingston pitcher Pete Watzka just four hits the rest of the way.

Mike Alecca, another RVC star and All-County choice, was the hurler for Hurley and he had his troubles. Freese greeted him with a single, Tom Gallo (you remember him) was safe on an error, then Watzka singled to drive them in. Dave Horton singled followed by a Skip Lyons double and two more were home. An error brought Lyons across.

Kingston scored one in the third when Lyons was safe on an error and Charlie Lay singled.

The final two came in the fifth as Lyons (Braves-UCCC) doubled again and scored on another error. Rocky Secreto walked and he too eventually came in on an error.

Watzka fanned six and walked one to win. Alecca, who deserved a slightly better fate, struck out five and passed three.

Ashe Predicts: It's Red or John

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Arthur Ashe, eliminated from the Wimbledon Tennis Tournament, predicted today that Rod Laver or John Newcombe will win the title.

"But Stan Smith is right three behind them," Ashe said. "Stan has a good chance because he's playing better than he has ever done before."

Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., who is seeded fourth, moved easily into the last 16 Thursday by defeating Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-3, 6-4, 7-5. The tall fair-haired Californian is on extended leave from the U.S. Army.

Ashe said: "Laver and Newcombe, both previous champions, must be favorites to win. I think Ken Rosewall's chance gets a little slimmer each year."

Laver, now 32, won the Wimbledon crown in 1961, 1962, 1968 and 1969. Newcombe won it last year for the second time.

Rosewall is 36. He reached the final last year—as he had done as a youngster in 1954 and 1956.

Ashe, of Gum Spring, Va., was seeded fifth but was upset Thursday by Marty Riessen, of Evanston, Ill., 6-1, 9-8, 3-9, 6-4.

One of the talking points of the tournament is Laver's service, which doesn't appear as devastating as it used to be. But the little Australian left-hander was still good enough to crush another of the United States hopes, Clark Graebner of New York City, 9-8, 6-2, 7-5.

Smith, Riessen, Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., and Jeff Borowiak of Berkeley, Calif., are all in the last 16.

Wright-Shanley Evens Its Record

ELLENVILLE Wright's-Shanley's defeated Local No. 806, 3-2, but lost to Smith Brothers, 4-1, leaving them with a 3-3 record in the Ellenville Softball League. Budd-Davos leads with a 4-1 record.

Ron Joray limited Local 806 to three hits and Wright's-Shanley's scored its winning run in the third when Jim Strappel scored all the way from first base on a single by Phil VanDemark. Tim Bowens slammed a solo homer in the sixth. Strappel had three singles.

Donna Bids For Third Open Title

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Donna Caponi, bidding for an unprecedented third straight U.S. Women's Open golf title, doesn't want to win it the way she did last year.

The 26-year-old brunette, tied with Joanne Carner for a one-stroke lead going into today's second round at the Kahkwa Club course, still cringes when reminded of her windup at Muskogee, Okla., in 1970.

She took a double bogey on the final hole before a national television audience and has taken a lot of lip since.

"I was criticized by a lot of people who said it was bad for the image of women's golf," she said after shooting a two-under-par 70 over the 6,306-yard course Thursday. "But they forget that I played 71 of the greatest holes of my life before that."

Mrs. Carner, who turned professional at the age of 30 and was named rookie of the year after winning the Wendell West Open last year, tied Miss Caponi for the lead even though she only hit six fairways and said her putting was bad.

Her first birdie, on the par five No. 5, came after hitting out of the rough first on the right, then the left. She bogeyed the par four No. 1 but birdied the par four 13th and the par five 17th to become co-leader.

Miss Caponi, who hasn't won a title since the 1970 Open, bogeyed the par four first hole but finished the front line even with a birdie three on the eighth.

She carded three birdies, including a 10-foot putt uphill on the 18th, and one bogey on the back side.

Mrs. Carner, five-time U.S. amateur titlist from Lake North, Fla., and Miss Caponi, of North Hollywood, Calif., hold a one-stroke lead over 26-year-old Lesley Holbert of Hialeah, Fla., who has yet to win a tournament in her six years on the pro tour.

Whitmore-Overbagh Team Roms in Member-Member

KINGSTON Mrs. Van Whitmore and Mrs. Gerald Overbagh, a pair of 23-handicap players, fired a fantastic 24-under-women's par 36-hole net score of 65-59-125 to capture the Wiltwyck Country Club's 1971 women's Member-Member championship. The scoring was on best ball with full handicaps.

Mrs. Whitmore and Mrs. Overbagh, each of whom contributed some heroics to the winning score, led the field by five strokes.

Mrs. Richard Gog and Mrs. Wilson Brooks posted 65-64-129 for the runner-up spot.

After a first round 34-31-65, the winners poured it on the Joray, who fanned nine, was the losing pitcher against Smith Brothers, who collected seven hits. Joray is now 3-3. Bill Heckman limited Wright's to six hits and picked up his third win in four decisions.

Bill Wilhelm of Smith's had a two-run triple in the fourth and Dick Conkin and Mike Wilhelm slammed back-to-back homers in the sixth. Wright's-Shanley's only run came on a solo homer by Phil VanDemark in the fourth.

Smith Brothers broke up a Wright threat with a double play with one out and the bases loaded in the sixth.

In BRL Loop: Two 22-0 Sets

KINGSTON The odds against two teams winning by identical scores of 22-0 and the losing teams each being limited to one hit, in the same league, on the same day are rather astronomical. But it happened in the Babe Ruth League.

Ed Glynn and Dave Kronick combined for the one-hitter, as the Vols routed Miron, 22-0. In the other game, Paul Runge and Kevin Coughlin of Kiwanis shared honors to one-hit Hurley, 22-0.

Coughlin and Glynn were the winning pitchers.

Walt Houghtaling went "5 for 5," including a triple, four singles and four RBIs to pace the Vols' win. Glynn helped his own cause with nine strikeouts, a single and triple and five runs batted in. The Vols scored 17 runs in the last three innings.

Kiwanis collected 10 hits and were aided by 18 bases on balls in routing Hurley. Chris Klinger knocked in four runs with two doubles and a single. Ron Jordan slammed a single, double and triple for four RBIs.

Miron's lone hit went to Lou Eccleston and it was Earl Mitchell's single that averted a Hurley no-hitter.

Clowns to Feature A Lady Umpire

KINGSTON A rare baseball first and a bit of Hudson Valley flavor will be combined when the famed Indianapolis Clowns meet the Kingston Braves Monday at 8 p. m. at Dietz Stadium.

Game time is 8 p.m.

Baseball, which has snubbed its nose at the opposite sex since Abner Doubleday invented the game, has its first lady umpire. The trail blazer is 21-year-old Nancy Miller, a pretty Chicagoan who is on tour with the Clowns and will be calling balls and strikes Monday night.

The area attraction is Marshall Canosa, former Marlboro High School All-UCAL baseball and basketball star, who is making the summer tour with the famed road club.

Canosa, who is varsity baseball coach at Pine Bush High, is a 5-foot-9, 200-pound catcher for the Clowns. After his UCAL career, he played varsity baseball at Salem College in Virginia.

A former model, Miss Miller will be attired in a blue uniform designed exclusively for her. She is a veteran of numerous sandlot games in the Chicago area and eventually hopes to earn a shot at major league umpiring.

Hailed as the Harlem Globe-trotters of baseball, the Clowns play approximately 150 games a year from coast to coast and in Canada.

Three of its top graduates have been Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves slugger; Hal King, also of the Braves and Paul Casanova of the Washington Senators system.

Canosa, who has watched Miss Miller in action in several games, has high praise for her. "She is a good umpire, makes her calls quickly and takes no bunk from the male players," he said.

Byrd and Jim Reynolds had three hits apiece.

Gary Barnes collected three hits and Don Van Keuren and Terry Corkery hit homers to pace Lincoln Park over Esposito's. Bill Murphy homered and Frank Turk had three hits for Esposito's.

Other leaders were: Bill Kopp (25) 930, Harry Smith 920, Grover Ellsworth Jr., 920; Bob Kearney, 900; Bill Costello, 890. Tied with .880 scores were Ted Blossom, Grover Ellsworth, Walter Read and Dick Reed.

Extortion Attempt Foiled; Publisher Intended Victim

GARY, Ind. (AP) — The FBI said today an attempt had been made to extort $30,000 from publisher Walter T. Ridder and that FBI agents critically wounded a former employee of Ridder's newspaper during a gunfight in the course of a payoff. FBI Agent James T. Naegle said the attempt to extort the money from Ridder, publisher of the Gary Post Tribune and vice president of Ridder Publications, had been made under threat of a bomb allegedly placed in the press room of the newspaper offices. Authorities said no bomb was found. A letter received Wednesday by Ridder said that if the bomb was found, the children of associate publisher C. Darrow "Duke" Tully would be shot by a sniper.

The FBI identified the man shot during the payoff as John E. Ward, 57, of Gary. He was wounded in the chest. No one else was hurt.

Authorities charged him under federal extortion laws. Tully said Ward was a former long-time employee of the newspaper who had been released after psychiatric treatment paid for by the company. Ward had been in charge of maintenance.

The FBI gave this account: After two previous telephone calls Thursday, Ridder was told to take the $30,000 in cash and walk alone down a railroad track on the east side of Gary.

Instead, an agent carrying a package filled with newspapers walked down the dark track and was met by Ward, who fired a shotgun at the agent.

Other agents nearby joined in the gunfight and wounded Ward in the chest. He was taken to a hospital and was reported in critical condition.

Tully, 40, who has been associate publisher of the Post Tribune since 1966 has two children, a 19-year-old daughter who works at the newspaper and a 15-year-old son.

Long, Hot Summer Seen By Urban League

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Urban League says a study of 52 cities, including six from White Plains to Buffalo, sounds the "warning bells" for a "long, hot summer."

John D. Williams, the league's director of communications, said Thursday that reports from the various cities differ in detail, but "one fact is clear in almost all the reports... and that is that unemployment and the lack of recreational facilities are two volatile ingredients that have built-in potential for creating trouble."

The upstate cities mentioned in the study were Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Binghamton, Albany and White Plains. Williams said, "the spectre of a 'long, hot summer' has been raised again and again over the past few years, until it is on the verge of losing all meaning."

He said, however, the statistics the league has accumulated indicate that the spectre must once again be raised.

The familiar statistics are all there," he said, "the cold figures that weave a story of unemployment, poor housing, miserable schools, drug addiction, police brutality, and community indifference to the rape of the black neighborhoods."

Hotel Enjoined From Adding Sundries Charge

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was permanently enjoined Thursday from its former practice of adding a 2 per cent "sundries" charge to the bills of its transient guests.

Under a decision handed down by State Supreme Court Justice Harold Baer, some 64,338 guests who stayed at the hotel between Dec. 2, 1969 and May 21, 1970, are entitled to a refund of at least $113,202.

Baer acted on an application by Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, who charged that the hotel's former practice of adding the 2 per cent charge to the bills for internal message and telephone service for its customers was fraudulent and in violation of the General Business Law.

In his decision, Baer ruled that "the charge for message services delineated as sundries was fraudulent and unconscionable."

Lefkowitz had also sought treble damages against the hotel, but the justice ruled that, under the law, he could only compel the hotel to make restriction of the overcharges.

Ray's Riverside Is Burglarized

KINGSTON — A burglary at Ray's Riverside Restaurant sometime overnight netted between $50 and $60 in cash and the contents of two vending machines, according to police who are investigating.

Your Horoscope

Saturday, June 26

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A could be a good friend in disguise. Think. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Not a day for unwise investments or spending money you can ill afford. Stay within a sane budget. Advice from successful people in business should be followed without delay. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Spending too much for pleasure or to help some friend is not wise, since you need to economize right now. Do something about a health problem you may have. Your appearance needs improving, too. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Remember that your motto is "I serve" and don't try to scurry away from obligations you have assumed. Improve the future by being steady. Your mental health improves by doing that which is right by others. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good pal may do something you do not approve of, so steer all the facts you need to make a success of it. Better not send out that letter blaming one who

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show preference for mate but be courteous with others and all is well; otherwise you could stir up enmity. Problems may crop up that require tact in solving. Don't get frustrated over them. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need to use diplomacy today since kin do not agree with persons in the outside world who are vital to your well-being. Stirring up trouble at home or in business world can cause you problems. Stay cool and collected. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day to rush off on some trip without first having all the facts you need to make a success of it. Better not send out that letter blaming one who you have tact for best results. Think constructively. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your own activities could get in the way of those of kin so try to plan your time wisely to avoid conflict of interests. Much headway can be made now. Show that you are poised. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Work out any arrangements you can to see that all goes well before you make those changes you have in mind. Steer clear of that new acquaintance who tries to get into some situation you do not care for. Show that you are smart. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show that you are dependable and go through with any responsibilities you have assumed instead of trying to get out of them. Show mate that you are loyal, or you could get into a terrific fight. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try not to let some differing opinion with mate turn into battle royal; look at things from a more reasonable standpoint. Public matters may irk you, but don't lose your equilibrium over them. Take constructive action. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you plan too much work for yourself today, you can really get exhausted, so be sensible. So something to build up your energy. Consider taking some educational course that will be helpful in your work. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those fascinating young people with a good deal of vim and vigor which needs to be used in right activity, or it could lead to a good deal of trouble with others, causing the life to be full of fighting and even sadism. Give highest religious training early and teach to be objective when dealing with people, then there can be real success, no matter what career is followed. Give sports. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Righter's Individual Forecast for your sign for July is now ready. Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

UNFLOWING LOCKS: (Q) My parents make me keep my hair cut real short. They're afraid I'll turn into some kind of a freak.
I don't want it real long. I do want it at least full in the back.
I'm embarrassed at school. Other boys ask why I don't let it grow. How can I get my parents to change their minds about it?—Burr Head (Almost) in Dallas
(A) Pick out a couple of your friends who have modestly long hair and good manners. Invite them over to your house. Introduce them to your parents.
After their visit, talk to your father and mother about them and their hair. Maybe this will convince your parents that they, and not you, are on the unfreakish road.
I hope so.

FLAT: (Q) I must be the flat-chested girl in the world. Everyone else my age has such a great shape. I'm going on 14 and still like a board. Do you have any exercises or diets I could use? Or anything?—Nothing at all in Philadelphia.
(A) A padded bra might help you. Another help would be clothes made to make you look bigger. For example, buy a blouse with ruffles in front.
A little time may help, too. As you get older, you may round out. That could happen in the next year or two, or even later.
I'm sending you a set of exercises designed to firm and tone the bust. Take them at least three or four months. They will help your chest muscles and they may help you to a bigger measurement, but again they may not.

Senate Draft Vote May Be Little Too Late

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted to extend the draft two more years, sweeten soldiers' pay $2.7 billion and chart an Indochina withdrawal plan disowned in advance by the White House.

But after seven weeks of debate the Senate's 71 to 16 ap-

POOLED EFFORTS — Youngsters in all manner of bathing gear turn to the pool at Forsyth Park as temperatures climbed to an official 92 degrees Thursday afternoon. High temperatures with humidity to match will continue through the weekend according to the forecasters. Only a scant chance of scattered showers is seen to offset the parched earth brought on by 13 straight days without rain. Kingston City parks open officially next Wednesday and that might be an inducement for the rainmakers to let loose a torrent. (Freeman photo by Krub).

Ruling Due on Medina Dismissal

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A ruling is due today on motions to dismiss murder and assault charges against Capt. Ernest Medina, whose infantry company staged the My Lai massacre in 1968.

Col. Kenneth Howard of Atlanta, the judge, is considering the motions along with 17 others filed by defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey during the pre-trial hearing for the captain.

Ten witnesses, including two generals, testified in the course of the six-day proceedings.

Bailey's complex motions charge that all of the officers

Heroin Detection — Hard-to-Beat Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new heroin detection test now administered to all GIs leaving Vietnam has already proven itself an effective, hard-to-beat means of finding hard drug users, its developers say.

The test, pioneered by a civilian laboratory in the nation's capital, was described Thursday by its developers as 100 times more sensitive than previous methods.

It can reliably detect heroin up to five days after a user has had a "fix," they say.

The test is the key to "a revolutionary mass screening technique for the detection of narcotics in the body on a scale never before achieved," said officials of the Washington Reference Laboratory (WRL).

They said the rapid highly sensitive process, in combination with the best of older methods, is already used by their technicians to screen more than 2500 urine samples daily.

Mrs. Bette Hamman, the laboratory's chief toxicologist, said many of the samples come from patients already under treatment, or about to enter treatment, at centers dispensing methadone, a chemical designed to wean addicts away from heroin.

Dr. Lawrence H. Vineburgh, director of WRL, said he believes the Army's decision to introduce the system in Vietnam June 20 was inspired, at least in part, by information furnished to the Defense Department by his laboratories at the request of Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn.

Steele, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, along with Rep. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., made a 22 day, nine-nation tour several months ago, studying international traffic in drugs. They were among the first to stress the problem of drug addiction among American troops in Vietnam.

An aide said Steele urged the Defense Department to use test equipment in South Vietnam and throughout the United States.

Whatever the inspiration, the U.S. command in South Vietnam opened up detection centers at Long Binh and Can Ranh Bay employing the new "FRAT" technique in June.

Viets Retake Fuller Base

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese infantrymen led by elite Black Panther units recaptured Fire Base Fuller Thursday night less than 24 hours after it fell to North Vietnamese forces, field reports said today.

More than 3,000 South Vietnamese troops pushed up jungled slopes of the 1,680-foot hilltop outpost to reinforce the troops who retook it. They reported allied bombing had left the base in ruins.

To the east, a ground attack and a booby trap incident killed four Americans.

Military sources said more than 100 South Vietnamese defenders of Fuller were killed when the North Vietnamese seized it late Wednesday night. But three American advisors listed as missing turned up safe Thursday. They reported they had to blow up $1 million worth of American-made equipment when the base fell.

Allied bombardment of Fuller, located five miles south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and a key base in a system of allied fortifications along the DMZ was carried out but B52 bombers carried out raids within a half mile of South Vietnamese forces sweeping the slopes of the hill on which the base is situated.

More than 2,500 South Vietnamese marines meanwhile occupied Landing Zone Sarge, eight miles to the south of Fuller. It was the westernmost allied outpost among a string of bases along the DMZ.

The American advisors who made their way from Fuller to safety after the base was overrun were Sgt. Dennis K. Thatcher, 21, of Dayton, Ohio; Capt. David R. Dickerson, 25, of Baltimore; and Marine Gunner Sgt. Albert Quiocho Jr., of Santee, Calif.

"What really tore us up most was the 57mm recoilless rifle direct fire," Thatcher said of the North Vietnamese assault against Fuller. "They had us really zeroed in. They were all around the mountain. We were surrounded. We had NVA (North Vietnamese Army) 360 degrees around us."

... Once they got through the wire we couldn't stop them. Everybody got out of the bunkers to see if they could hold the wire. The base commander said they were going to stay and fight no matter what happened."

Dickerson said Thatcher was "the real hero" of the fighting at Fuller.

"He stood on top of the bunker with a flashlight to direct air strikes and stayed until the battery in his flashlight ran out," Dickerson said.

The South Vietnamese retook Fuller late Thursday night.

Where everyone Counts!

Special Freeman Supplement

Why an Ulster Academy

- Freedom of choice.
- Educational diversity.
- A school on a personal scale where everyone counts.

These themes meant something to the nucleus of founders who were first drawn together by the project of starting an independent school in 1966. These same themes, enriched by experience, continue to make sense to the families of the more than 90 students enrolled in 1971 in Ulster Academy, to the faculty who teach there, and to a widening circle of people in the Mid-Hudson region who have taken an interest in the only independent school of its kind on the West side of the Hudson between Storm King Mountain and Albany.

The story of Ulster Academy is the story of people coming together by choice sharing the enthusiasm of common ideals. Their coming together is not a negative sign that existing schools in the area are deficient but rather a positive sign that the existing public and parochial school systems should be supplemented by a third choice — that choice is an independent school, not religiously affiliated, operating under a charter by the Board of Regents of New York State as a non-profit educational corporation, offering an educational experience which is different and distinctive and valuable.

The freedom of families to found schools in the public interest is a privilege of American life which at its best is characterized by the mutual strengthening of public and private institutions. It is probably no more healthy that there be a public monopoly in the field of education than that there be a public monopoly in any other field. The so-called "private sector" is basic to the American system and from the vitality of this private sector comes much of the variety and quality of life.

To enrich and diversify the quality of educational opportunities at the secondary school level Ulster Academy was, therefore, founded in 1967 and opened its doors to its first students, junior and senior high school, grades 7-12, in the fall of 1968.

The Academy has grown each year and has now graduated two senior classes, the first a small group of 10, the second, the class of 1971, a group of 16. Among these 26 graduates are three Regents Scholarship Winners and three Alternate Winners, two Commended

Students in the National Scholarship Achievement Program, and one winner of an Outstanding Young American Award.

These graduates have been granted admission by Connell, Wagner, Hope, SUNY Harpur, Case Western Reserve, Dickinson, Wittenberg, Kenyon, SUNY Albany, University of North Carolina, Drew, Ripon and SUNY Brockport.

Also Hofstra, University of Miami, St. Lawrence, Bennett, SUNY UCCC, Syracuse, Hartwick, Emerson, Washington College and Washington University, Green Mountain Junior and SUNY New Paltz.

Also Boston University, Colby, William Smith, Oberlin, Moravian, University of Georgia, Franklin and Marshall, Reed College, Smith and Middlebury and Delaware Valley College.

On the basis of this record, the Academy has a solid claim on its founding ideal of educational quality. It also offers a distinctively friendly, informal life style and a sound, contemporary curriculum the students themselves are enthused about. What's more, since roughly 20 per cent of the student body attend the Academy under the guidelines of the School Scholarship Service, the student population is diversified and interesting.

One quarter of the students are children of families in public or private education, publishing or the creative arts. The school has no admissions quota of any kind regarding race or religion and so there too one finds variety and balance. Geographically, roughly 45 per cent of the students reside in the Kingston Consolidated School District and the rest are distributed among Woodstock, Saugerties, Red Hook, New Paltz, Highland and other towns, making the Academy as was intended, a regional institution. Since it is a day school, students from these various areas share a common life together while yet maintaining friendship in their own residential communities.

"A school everyone counts" — whether he be a trustee, or a teacher, a 7th grader or a coach, a parent or a benefactor — all count because the school is a gathering of people by choice, a humane institution existing by preference and loyalty rather than by necessity. Ulster Academy is a school with a mind of its own, making a contribution of its own to the educational life of the region.

Semester Ends in Festive Ceremony

What's Going on Here...?

Special Programs

STUDYING THE ISSUES

The Ulster Academy philosophy encourages student initiative and accommodates special programs which responsible students call for and organize themselves with the cooperation of the faculty.

One such program which grew out of the mutual impulse of faculty and students was week long Environmental Symposium held in March 1970 before the Earth Day observation. The regular school schedule for the week was suspended and an intensive study and action oriented symposium was designed.

David Loeks, director of Pattern for Progress; Herbert Hekler, executive director of the Ulster County Planning Board; Harry Edinger, Kingston Sanitary Engineer; Charles Eggert of the Sierra Club; and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell were featured speakers in the week's pattern of films, discussion groups and field trips which included student exploration of the Port Ewen Water Authority, Kingston Sewage Plant, Alpha Cement Plant, and the IBM Plant at Kingston.

Students conducted a dramatic clean-up walk down Broadway out of which grew, in the following months, a number of clean-up projects in the region, one a campout clean-up of trails in the Minnewaska Preserve.

Following the symposium, teams of Academy students, by then well informed, took special programs to public schools in the area to assist them with their own Earth Day observation and Ulster Academy faculty, especially Tom Gabriel biologist and ecologist, became active resource leaders for other civic groups focusing attention on the problems of the environment.

As a result of all of this effort students petitioned for a special term length course in the fall of 1970 in Environmental Studies team taught by members of the natural sciences and social science faculties at the Academy. Space Ship Earth has a good many re-cycling friends now at Ulster Academy!

Other programs of similar depth have been designed by the students on American involvement in Southeast Asia and the military draft. The programs being careful to represent differing expert points of view on the complex problems which are of special concern to the young people today. The Academy regards objective and open minded exploration of controversial issues as an important exercise in academic freedom and as excellent preparation for citizenship.

Internship Beyond the Classroom

There's more to education than going to school. Today's generation of young people are highly aware of the on-going "world outside the walls of the classroom." What is more, they increasingly ask for an opportunity to explore something on their own, to pursue some special interest and have it recognized as valuable by the school, even to have the school's assistance in exploring it.

In recognition of these factors the Academy has developed an Independent and Internship Study Program. The period Feb. 12-22 was designated this year as a special Mid-Winter Independent Study Break and at the start of the winter term in January each student in the Academy was assigned to a special faculty tutor with whom he worked out a careful blueprint for the Break. If he chose an internship, he presented a special letter of introduction to the lawyer, architect, merchant, government officer, librarian, or whoever had consented to have the student work under him as an intern.

Academy students were to be found interning in the County Court House, in medical laboratories, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and at local nursery schools. Others carried through projects of nature observation and wilderness survival training in the winter snows of the Catskills.

Other students interned with area artists or at a ski shop and still others carried through more conventional academic independent study projects in literature or science or crafts or intravel journals. Following the close of the Break, the completed projects were evaluated by faculty teams and special reports sent to both students and their families, not graded but an important part of the student's permanent record.

In addition to special intensive programs of this kind many students in the Academy carry on independent study projects under individual teachers throughout the year. That's the Academy answer to the hard old question — "Teacher, how much do I have to do?"

INDEPENDENT STUDY TAKES ON NEW DIMENSIONS

Helping Out in the Community

Again the story is student initiative and again the cooperative response of the Academy administration and faculty. Community service programs by high school students working in public or private agencies outside of school were pioneered by several of the Quaker independent schools in the Philadelphia area and have since become an important added dimension at many independent schools throughout the country.

In the case of Ulster Academy the immediate urban setting of the school in Kingston provides a ready field and the original Ulster Academy catalog of 1968 devoted a special section of the philosophy and value of Community Service. The result is that Academy students now exercise released-time responsibility for work in the Kingston Children's Home and the Rondout Day Care Center and Headstart Program. Other students work as volunteers at the Kingston City Lab and at both Kingston and Benedictine Hospitals.

The entire program operates under a faculty coordinator and has produced several students with a developing vocational interest in social service work. That counts too.

Curriculum in Motion

It used to be in school that everyone took the same course and did the same assignments and took the same exams that authority dictated. That's less and less the case these days in all schools but especially in Ulster Academy which offers students a flexible, elective approach to their course pattern as well as a voice in the development of new courses (Environmental Studies, Microbiology, Embryology, a Library Resource and Sources seminar and Philosophy of Education — all semester length electives now offered as a result of student request.)

The Academy presents a traditional academic curriculum concentrating on the five basic areas — English, Mathematics, Science, Language, Social Science but within the framework of a trimester year with elective options at each semester and in all courses the opportunity for the student to pace himself. The result is a highly personalized education with a student feeling that he has designed his own program in cooperation with his teachers.

A winter term course in English — average class size is 12-15 — might find five seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and three bright freshmen studying Short Narrative Fiction, all studying a common core of material but each pursuing assigned personal patterns of papers, reports and research. Come spring term, those same 14 students, by their own choice, may be redistributed among Advanced Composition, Gothic Tales, Romantic Poetry, Readings in Black American Literature, or Mythology.

The same pattern of variety holds true in the Social Sciences as well where a student may elect to start the year in Area Studies examining the development of Brazil and China, may continue with the course for winter and spring terms taking up religion and politics in India and Japan and in the spring political systems in Latin America or he may move to another Social Studies choice for winter or spring, perhaps in Economics or European History or American History or History of Art.

The point is, together with his faculty advisor, the choice is his. Whatever his choice, however, the approach to learning — attention to concepts, techniques of analysis and investigation, skills in observation and reporting, both written and oral — will remain the same.

In Mathematics and Science the pattern tends to be a year long course, whether it be BSCS Biology or Chemistry or Geometry, but here as well instruction takes account of individual differences and term length electives are available to supplement the basic courses. Again, whatever the course, the common theme is investigation, laboratory skills, understanding structure and skills of reporting and accuracy.

The Academy course of study is, therefore, "curriculum in motion" with certain fixed points around which movement is possible to express the individual interests and abilities of each student.

Course Variety Aids Development

Humanities are stressed in the curriculum at Ulster Academy to provide a broad-based liberal education.

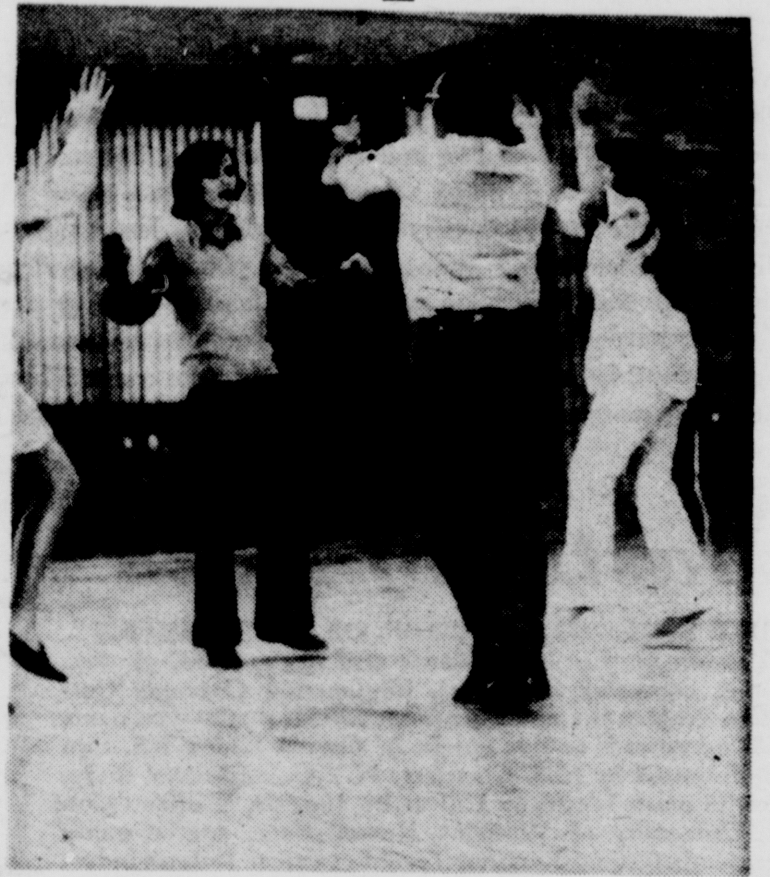

In addition to the usual course offerings a number of special interest classes have been conducted at the Academy.

Art instruction (I) and folk dancing (R) have been very popular with students as have been yoga classes and guitar lessons.

Field trips to plays, museums and other points of interest related to various subjects have been arranged throughout the school year providing a new dimension of learning for the students.

The stated aim of the Academy offerings is "to develop study and capable individuals, not simply to place students in college. Its aim is to provide them with intellectual training and knowledge of themselves and the world, so that they may decide and perform well at the next stage of their development."

Throughout the year parents are advised of student progress through evaluation letters from teachers and faculty advisor.

No Icy Blast for UA Students

ON THE MOUNTAIN SKIING IS THE THING

Philip Davenport, director of the Highmount Ski Center, directs and coaches the Academy's all-school winter ski program built around release-time ski trips to Belleayre Ski Center for instructional and competition skiing at special student rates.

Three-fourths of the student body participate in this special program which supplements the regular winter athletic program of basketball and swimming.

In the fall, Davenport offers an athletic option called Ski Conditioning. (The soccer coach thinks that's fine!)

Parents Role a Busy One

PARENTS TALK OVER SCHOOL ISSUES

The role of parents in the life of a school is all too often that of "one who stands and waits" — someone who waits in the hope of being told what is going on, either by his own child or by the school; someone who waits for results or who waits for an appointment. The Ulster Academy parent, generally speaking, has a more active and satisfying role to play than that.

First, he is kept abreast of things by a steady flow of communication from the school including special parent newsletters and comment slips and an open invitation to visit school at any time to talk with teachers, the Headmaster, or simply to enjoy observing. More than that, he is a member of an active Academy Association with representation on the Board of Trustees and an interesting agenda of productive activities over the year. He is very definitely someone who counts, not only because he pays tuition and probably has a strong interest in education himself in the first place for having sent his child to the Academy, but also because the Academy, for its part, encourages him to be involved.

The Ulster Academy Parent's Handbook puts it this way: "Because the Academy is a new school and a relatively small one, because it is a day school and a friendly one, and because its future is before it — parents, Trustees, and faculty are drawn into close working contact with each other . . . each has an important stake and each derives a special satisfaction working for common goals year by year."

Under vigorous parent leadership, provided first by Mrs. Lawrence Siewers and by the current president, Howard Young, the record shows the Ulster Academy parents have worked; they hold an annual barn sale, sponsor a distinguished piano concert, have held successful auctions and raffles, provide speakers and programs for themselves and the school, and this year presented the first Academy Art Sale representing the works of many nationally known artists. When need be the parents and Trustees hold joint open meetings to discuss important issues; and, on a more personal family level, parents find themselves involved in the lives of their own children's friends and classmates as the special events and social life unfold.

The Ulster Academy parent, therefore, is probably too busy to do much standing and waiting and the school wants it that way.

Faces Reflect Camaraderie

Who says school can't be fun. These Ulster Academy students register with animation their delight in classroom and outside activities offered by the independent school. A personal approach is possible through the small class size and flexibility of programs. Individuality is stressed throughout the school year and reaches a high point at the Mid-Winter Break with Independent study and internships in chosen fields of endeavor. Judging from the smiles it all adds up to a pleasurable education experience.

New School Bears Name of Old Academy

When the new independent school was coming into being it was decided that an old name would best identify its regionality and purpose. Thus the new school became Ulster Academy.

The original Ulster Academy served the educational needs of the community in the late 19th and early 20th century. It was housed in the building which was later used as School No. 2 and even later as the temporary home of Ulster County Community College. Others schools of that day in Kingston were Kingston Academy and McCabe School.

The new Ulster Academy was first headquartered at 17 Pearl Street, later moving to the former Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing where classes have been held through this semester. In the fall, Ulster Academy will be utilizing the former Children's Home on East Chester Street as its new home.

Three P's Behind Three R's

These are the 3 P's behind the 3 R's, the component parts of education in America. They are the institutional expression of pluralism, the precious "factor of difference" woven into the national story.

The times, being what they are, tend to threaten all institutions but the largest and even these are sometimes shaken. But a wise and tenacious instinct in the American character resists the blurring out of personality and personal scale and struggles to assert these values even in a mass society where everything tend to get awfully big and impersonal.

Of all things, education cannot become impersonal since its basic work is the shaping of individual lives. To the extent that education keeps its mind on its business, which is the shaping of life and character, as much as the accumulation of credits and the keeping of records, it claims our deepest respect as a human enterprise. To the extent it forgets its work, losing track of the individual and substituting the system in his place, it generates frustration and tension from within itself and is soon confronted by its own children.

Ulster Academy tries very hard day by day to keep one thing clear in mind — to be faithful to its own reason for being, to be a school where everyone counts.

Independent School Trustee

Public schools have their Boards of Education and parochial schools their Diocesan officers and independent schools have their Board of Trustees. The National Association of Independent Schools publishes a Handbook for Trustees which declares that "The basic responsibility for the sound management of an independent school rests with its governing board. Boards are usually made up of sincere and dedicated persons who are successful in business or professional life."

The Ulster Academy Board, which numbers 15 individuals, serving one, two or three year terms on a rotating basis, fits that description. These men and women are broadly responsible for establishing basic policy and for the financial and physical well being of the school. The executive officer of the independent school is its Headmaster who works closely with his Board of Trustees to implement and administer school policy. The Board of Trustees to for their part represent the members of a non-profit educational corporation chartered by the Board of Regents at the University of the State of New York and operate under bylaws approved by the National Association and the New York State Association of their own in school. Only one of the trustees, Harry Meislahn, the distinguished Headmaster of Albany Academy which was founded in 1813, is not a resident in the Mid-Hudson community. The rest are very much on the scene and part of the on-going life of the school.

In quieter days a trustee might sit in undisturbed dignity two or three times a year to review reports on his fine, old, ivied school. Such trustees are hard to find these days on anyone's board for the times are full of change and challenge for all institutions, ivied or not.

Ulster Academy is not old enough to have grown ivy and far too demanding to project to allow its board the leisure of two or three meetings a year. The Academy trustee is a doer and a planner but he has the satisfaction of being able to see his plans and hopes actually accomplished. He may become discouraged but he never becomes indifferent for the school is, to a very considerable degree, what he and his colleagues want it to be. The very nature of an independent school makes this possible; everyone counts and everyone comes because he shares common ideals and loyalties.

The Academy has been fortunate indeed in the caliber of its trustees and in the devotion of its first two presidents. The founding president, George V. Hutton, architect, and his successor, Morton Kamen, CPA, both of Kingston. These men and their Board associates have had the courage to go where angels fear to tread — to found a school to meet the needs of changing times.

New Home for Ulster Academy

WHEN CLASSES RESUME—With the start of the fall semester Ulster Academy students will be attending classes in the former Children's Home on East Chester Street. The building was leased by the Ulster Academy trustees this spring and will be utilized as a school facility for the next three years with an option to buy. The first two years of the independent school were spent in the former Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing on Mary's Avenue. The Children's Home residence made available through the transfer of that operation to the new facilities at the former Academy of St. Ursula grounds at Grove Street. (Freeman photo by Kruh)
